Administrative Information

---

Immediate Source of Acquisition

The photographs in the collection were acquired, over a sixty year period, from a diverse array of sources, including newspapers, magazines, auction catalogs, books, gallery announcements, calendars, postcards, and as gifts or purchases.

Conditions Governing Access

Anyone can use the photograph collection for reference purposes, but only members of the Yale University community can check out the photographs, on a temporary basis, for the purpose of research and study for Yale University courses.

Conditions Governing Use

Yale University is not the copyright holder of the images in the collection; therefore, the photographs in the collection cannot be used for publication purposes, or for use within any form of non-print media. Photocopying is permitted for research and study purposes only.

Preferred Citation

The Photograph Collection of the Art and Architecture Library, Yale University.

Biographical / Historical

The photograph collection was begun in the 1930's, by the Yale University School of Fine Arts, for the purpose of teaching and study. Subsequently, in 1952, the photograph collection became a part of the Art and Architecture Library where it progressively grew, and also, continued to be utilized as a reference, research, and instructional tool by faculty and students. At the present time, the photograph collection is primarily used as a resource of images for photo study by students for History of Art and related courses, but the collection is also still used, albeit on a less frequent level, for reference and research purposes. As a result of both the proliferation of a collection of digitized images, and the need to economize space in the pending construction of a new Arts Library; in 1999, it was proposed that the photograph collection be relocated as an archival collection to the University's off-site Library Shelving Facility, and that a finding aid be created to provide efficient access to the materials within the collection.

Scope and Contents

The photograph collection consists of approximately 195,000 mounted black and white, and color, photographic reproductions of original works significant to the realms of the history of art and the history of architecture. The collection embraces both Western and non-Western cultures, and furthermore, encompasses time periods stretching from prehistoric times to the present. The collection is multidimensional in nature incorporating Architecture, Painting, Sculpture and the Minor Arts. Drawing is also represented within the collection. A large group of folders containing miscellaneous clippings are dispersed throughout the collection, and they accompany related sections and photographs within the collection. Three different size photographs comprise the collection - small (which comprises the bulk of the collection), medium and large. Furthermore, the collection also includes a group of photographs referred to as white mounts, which are merely photographs of varied sizes mounted on white mat board.

Series II: Painting consists of reproductive photographs of original paintings from a variety of countries, cultures, time periods and in a variety of styles. Photographs of drawings are also included, and are interfiled with those of paintings; however, if there were a large quantity of drawings for a particular artist, a separate section was made in that artist's hierarchy for drawings. Folders containing miscellaneous clippings are filed with related sections in the collection.

Arrangement

Painting is arranged alphabetically by country, and alphabetically by artist therein. description fo all four sections
Series I: Architecture

---

Arrangement

The sub-series, United States, is divided into two major sections: Anonymous and Miscellaneous & Individual Artists.

The Anonymous section is arranged chronologically by century, and by genre therein. The 20th Century Anonymous subseries is divided into a general section, and then a genre section.

The Miscellaneous & Individual Artists section is arranged alphabetically. Within each letter of the alphabet there is a Miscellaneous Artists section, followed by an Individual Artists section. The Miscellaneous Artists sections are divided into alphabetic ranges. The Individual Artists sections are arranged alphabetically by artist. Within each artist's division the arrangement is usually by location or chronology, but occasionally by genre if the artist was prolific. Photographs of drawings by artists are interfiled with their paintings, unless there are a substantial amount of drawings, in which case a separate section is incorporated within that particular artist's hierarchy.
