Biographical / Historical

Andover Theological Seminary was founded in 1807. The origin of the school can be traced to Phillips Academy, which was established in 1778 at Andover, Massachusetts. Specific instruction in divinity was provided in 1794 when a legacy was received for the support of a professor of divinity. In 1807, additional funds made possible the founding of a separate department of divinity. The following year, the theological institution known as Andover Theological Seminary was opened for instruction. In 1907 the Seminary transferred to Harvard University. In 1931 the Seminary transferred to Newton Centre, and became affiliated with Newton Theological Institution to form Andover Newton Theological School. In 1965 the two schools formally merged.

American flag made by Harriet Beecher Stowe.

In History of Andover Theological Seminary (Newton MA, 1933), author Henry K. Rowe states that "Among other treasures are ... the United States flag made by Mrs. [Harriet Beecher] Stowe and flown from the flagstaff on the Hill during the Civil War." Her husband, Calvin Ellis Stowe, taught at Andover Theological Seminary from 1852 to 1864.

In Harriet Beecher Stowe: A Spiritual Life, author Nancy Koester describes the scene at Stowe's funeral procession passing their home in Andover where she finished writing Uncle Tom's Cabin. The house was "draped with an American flag" and "festooned with black." There is no evidence to prove or disprove that this is the same flag made by Stowe and flown at the seminary.
