Processing Information

The Donatien Marie Joseph de Vimeur, vicomte de Rochambeau Papers Relating to the French West Indies are comprised of materials formerly classed as Ms Vault 223. Acquired as a gift from rare book vendor H. P. (Hans Peter) Kraus in 1968, the collection as received was housed in 20th-century portfolios containing dossiers in paper wrappers. Dossier wrappers are annotated with dossier titles and intermittent nonsequential numbers, written in multiple unidentified 18th-19th century hands. Additional annotations in an unidentified 20th century hand associate dossiers with "cahier" numbers from an unidentified source, most comprising a single span (I/1-I/54), with a few outlying numbers (II/3 and II/10), and one item with no cahier number.

The collection was processed and this finding aid was created in 2020 April. During processing, portfolios were discarded and the collection was rehoused, maintaining existing organization by dossier and arrangement by cahier number. Dossier wrappers and contents were rehoused in multiple folders as needed. Contents of dossiers have not been verified at the item level, and enclosures referenced in correspondence may be separated or may not be present.

This finding aid employs the following descriptive conventions:

Transcribed file titles:

Cahier numbers were recorded in standardized form.

Dossier titles were transcribed as found, in quotes, retaining variant spellings.

Diacritics, capitalization, and punctuation were standardized or supplied, without brackets.

Some abbreviations were expanded for clarity, without brackets.

Some dossier wrappers were apparently repurposed from unrelated 18th-20th century manuscript or printed material; superseded information was not transcribed.

Supplied file titles and notes:

For untitled dossier subgroups, a title was devised, without brackets.

Subdivided cahier numbers were supplied as needed, in brackets.

For most dossiers, brief file-level scope and content notes were supplied, based on donor descriptions and examination during processing.

Maps:

Height and width are recorded in centimeters, based on neat line.

The following are noted when present:

Creator.

Scale, expressed in units of measurement as found, converted to approximate centimeters and meters, and converted to an approximate fraction. Centimeters and meters were calculated based on the following conversions from measurement units of the ancien régime:

Ligne = 0.226 cm

Pouce = 2.706 cm

Toise = 1.949 m

Pas = 0.624 m

IK [arabic number]. Similar numbers appear on maps in the Rochambeau Papers and Rochambeau Family Cartographic Archive (GEN MSS 146), where they are identified as a classification assigned in the 19th century by Mis de Rochambeau (Eugène Achille Lacroix de Vimeur, comte de Rochambeau), an historian and grandson of the vicomte de Rochambeau.

Dates:

The order of contents in each dossier was maintained as received, including nested documents. Most dossiers are not in chronological order. Date spans are approximate and may not account for undated items, copies, or enclosures.

French Republican calendar dates were converted to Gregorian calendar dates when required for recording single dates or date spans.

Donatien Marie Joseph de Vimeur, vicomte de Rochambeau (1750-1813)

Donatien Marie Joseph de Vimeur, vicomte de Rochambeau (1750-1813) was a French army officer active in the West Indies during the French Revolution and in Europe during the Napoleonic Wars. Rochambeau was a son of Jean-Baptiste-Donatien de Vimeur, comte de Rochambeau (1725-1807), commander of the French army in the United States during the American Revolution. The vicomte de Rochambeau was an aide de camp to his father in the United States, 1780-1782, returning to France in 1783. As gouverneur général des Isles du Vent, Rochambeau was based at Saint-Domingue in 1792, and then at Martinique in 1793-1794, where he was besieged by the British and surrendered in 1794. As a prisoner of the British, he was paroled in the United States, returning to France in 1795. Rochambeau returned to Saint-Domingue as military commander briefly in 1796, and again in 1801-1803, in an attempt to suppress the revolution that led to Haitian independence. Following defeat of the French in Saint-Domingue, Rochambeau was paroled in England during 1803-1811. In 1813 he returned to France and military service. Rochambeau was wounded in the Battle of Leipzig and died in 1813.

Scope and Contents

The papers consist of 56 dossiers containing over 3600 documents relating to government of Martinique, Guadeloupe, and other French colonies in the West Indies, most dating from Rochambeau's term as gouverneur général des Isles du Vent, 1792-1794. Also present are small amounts of papers created by earlier colonial administrators, 1762-1791, or relating to Rochambeau's surrender to the British, parole, and return to Saint-Domingue, 1794-1802. Twenty-one maps, most in ink and watercolor, document topographical features, colonial settlements, and fortification in Martinique, Guadeloupe, Sainte-Lucie, Tabago, and other islands, 1758-1802. A small amount of letterheads, forms, and other printed items may include materials printed in the French West Indies.

Dossiers are organized by subject and annotated with titles and numbering in several unidentified 18th-20th century hands, possibly representing arrangement and use by Rochambeau or subsequent owners. Most dossiers contain letters received by Rochambeau from military officers and colonial administrators; letters from other correspondents include petitions from enslaved people, prisoners, widows, and émigrés. Dossiers also contain copies of proceedings of the Assemblée représentative, Martinique; letters from local comités de surveillance and political clubs; military plans and reports on fortification; and lists of landowners, military officers, and free and enslaved soldiers.

The papers document Rochambeau's efforts to establish republican government in Martinique, Guadeloupe, and other island colonies; defend French strategic and commercial interests in the West Indies against Great Britain during the War of the first Coalition; and resolve conflict among inhabitants of the French colonies, encompassing royalists and republicans, enslaved black people seeking freedom, white sugar producers advocating continuation of slavery, other whites (petits blancs) and free people of color (gens du couleur) claiming rights asserted by republican ideals, and émigrés fleeing or returning to the colonies in response to political events, civil disorder, and war.

While most papers relate to Martinique, also present are papers documenting conflict between the Commission générale et extraordinaire, Guadeloupe, and Georges-Henri-Victor Collot, governor of Guadeloupe; colonial administration of Sainte-Lucie and Tabago; and revolution in Saint-Domingue. Materials dating from Rochambeau's predecessors include papers of gouverneurs généraux des Isles du Vent Claude-Charles de Damas; Antoine Charles du Houx, baron de Vioménil; and Jean-Pierre Antoine, comte de Béhague de Villeneuve.

Papers relating to war between France and Great Britain in the West Indies document construction and maintenance of island fortification; deployment of the French navy and army, including the 31e, 32e, 37e, 51e, 53e, and 88e régiments d'infanterie; administration of Garde nationale units; formation of the Chasseurs de la Martinique, recruitment of free men of color as officers, and enlistment of enslaved soldiers; and accounts of the British sieges of Martinique and Guadeloupe, and surrender by Rochambeau and Collot.

Dossier notes contain brief personal and corporate names, based on the Library of Congress Name Authority File (LCNAF) when possible, and contemporary French geographic, military, and administrative terms, as found in the papers or in reference sources. See collection-level biographical and historical notes for a list of full personal and corporate names and a list of current geographic terms in English, with historical variants.

While names and subject terms in dossier titles and notes identify concentrations of materials, many of these same people, organizations, and events are represented throughout the papers. Unless otherwise indicated in dossier notes, materials are in manuscript, and letters are to Rochambeau. Maps are manuscript on paper, in ink and watercolor, unless otherwise noted. For some dossiers, additional group- or item-level descriptions may be found in a typescript listing created by the donor, filed in box 32. The donor's listing is arranged by topics and sequential numbers assigned by the donor, with corresponding cahier numbers appended to each description. The donor's descriptions use nonstandard personal, corporate, and geographic names, and contain outdated and biased language, particularly regarding race, slavery, and colonization.

Arrangement

Arranged sequentially by numbered cahiers number, each containing one or more dossiers.
