ANDREW JACKSON FAULK (1814-1898)

Andrew Jackson Faulk was born at Milford, Pike County, Pennsylvania, on November 26, 1814. In 1815, his parents moved to Kittanning, in Armstrong County, where Faulk was educated. He later learned the printing trade, studied law, and took an active part in local politics. In 1861, President Abraham Lincoln appointed him post-trader to the Yankton Indian Agency in the Dakota Territory. In 1864, he returned to Pennsylvania and engaged in the oil business until 1866 when President Andrew Johnson appointed him governor of Dakota. He served in that office until 1869, when President Ulysses S. Grant appointed John A. Burbank to succeed him. Faulk continued to live in Yankton until his death, and was active in local politics and in the opening and development of the Black Hills. He served as an advisor to the peace commission under General Sherman which concluded the treaty of Fort Laramie in 1868. He was appointed clerk of the U.S. District Court, Second Judicial District, in November 1873, and served until 1881.

Scope and Contents

The manuscripts in the Andrew Jackson Faulk Papers deal mainly with Faulk's official duties as governor and superintendent of Indian affairs in Dakota Territory and as clerk of the U.S. District Court. Correspondence with Faulk and Faulk's correspondence with his wife and family are, in general, represented by original letters. Faulk's letters to others are usually signed copies made for his official files. In addition to the letters and documents listed below, the manuscripts include Faulk's commissions as justice of the peace in Armstrong Co., Pennsylvania, and as lieutenant colonel in the Pennsylvania Militia, as well as deeds, indentures, leases for property in Pennsylvania and in Dakota, accounts current of the Superintendent of Indian Affairs with the Commissioners N. G. Taylor, Charles E. Mix, L. V. Bogy, and Ely S. Parker, including vouchers, abstracts, receipts, property returns, reports on employees (1866-1869), and correspondence with the Commissioner and auditors in the Treasury Department (1866-75). Also found in the collection are accounts current of the executive department of the Territory, emolument returns (1875-81), receipts (1873-81), correspondence with the Solicitor of the Treasury and U.S. Comptroller, decisions and reports of cases, accounts of the clerk of the U.S. District Court, and personal memoranda, notes, bills and receipts and twenty-five photographs of friends and Indians. There are around 2,000 pages in the collection.

The following detailed list of papers in the collection can also be found on pp. 94-104 of A Catalogue of Manuscripts in the Collection of Western Americana in the Yale University Library, Mary C. Withington, editor.
