Processing Information

Collections are processed to a variety of levels, depending on the work necessary to make them usable, their perceived research value, the availability of staff, competing priorities, and whether or not further accruals are expected. The library attempts to provide a basic level of preservation and access for all collections, and does more extensive processing of higher priority collections as time and resources permit.

These materials have been arranged and described according to national and local standards. For more information, please refer to the Beinecke Manuscript Unit Processing Manual.

Biographical / Historical

Annie Heloise Abel (1873-1947) (Yale 1905 PhD) immigrated from Sussex, England, to Salina, Kansas, in 1885. A historian and professor, Abel taught at various colleges in the United States, including Wells College, Goucher College, Smith College, and Johns Hopkins University. She authored multiple works on Native Americans, specifically on British and American Indian policies, using Indian Office records to understand federal policy.
