Nathan Judson

Nathan Judson was a real estate dealer in Lansing, Michigan. Together with his brother James B. Judson, he ran the firms Judson, Wiley & Judson, and Judson Brothers. In addition to buying and selling Michigan real estate, he invested in gold mines, including the Buck Eye Mining Company in Basin, Montana. After the death of James, he supported the education of his three nephews Wilber, Lowell, and Paul Judson. Wilber travelled extensively in the Western United States and in Mexico to investigate mining prospects on behalf of his uncle. Wilber worked at several mines, including the Buck Eye Mine in Basin, Montana (1902-1903), an unidentified mine in Panama (1905), and the Sierra Mining Company in Ocampo, Chihuahua, Mexico (1911). Paul and Lowell founded the Judson Brothers fruit growing business in Kinderhook, New York.
