Processing Information

Collections are processed to a variety of levels, depending on the work necessary to make them usable, their perceived research value, the availability of staff, competing priorities, and whether or not further accruals are expected. The library attempts to provide a basic level of preservation and access for all collections, and does more extensive processing of higher priority collections as time and resources permit.

These materials have been arranged and described according to national and local standards. For more information, please refer to the Yale Archival Processing Manual.

Related Materials

Printed material received with the collection files were removed for separate cataloging and can be accessed by searching the library's online catalog.

Biographical / Historical

Stephen John Keynes was born on October 19, 1929, in London, United Kingdom. He was the fourth son of surgeon and bibliophile Geoffrey Langdon Keynes (1887-1982) and Margaret Elizabeth Darwin (1890-1975). Keynes's extended family included his great-grandfather Charles Darwin and uncle John Maynard Keynes. He attended both public and private schools before becoming an Open Scholar at King's College, Cambridge, where he participated in the arts.

After graduating, he did National Service with the Royal Artillery until 1951 when he began a career as a merchant banker. In 1955, Keynes married Mary Cecilia Knatchbull-Hugessen, the daughter of a Canadian senator. They proceeded to have five children in six years. Knatchbull-Hugessen later became a teacher in London.

After twenty years of banking, Keynes turned to book collecting. In 1971, he began his second career at a community bookshop, which was one of the few businesses in town welcoming to LGBTQ+ individuals, people of color, and low-income families. Keynes became a member of the Roxburghe Club in 1978, the world's oldest bibliographic and publishing society, of which his father and, later, brother were members. The bulk of his collecting occurred between the 1970s and 1980s. He specialized in Western artifacts from the Middle Ages. While many of his books were acquired through antiquarian booksellers, some of his collection was inherited from his parents. His mother left him a collection of autographed letters and manuscripts assembled over the course of her lifetime, which included materials from Edwardian and Victorian political figures and members of the British Royal family. With his brother Quentin Keynes, he founded the Charles Darwin Trust in 1999.

Keynes continued his collecting work until his death on August 13, 2017.

Scope and Contents

The Stephen John Keynes collection files shed light on the process of manuscript collecting in the 1970s through 1990s. The collection contains catalogues of manuscripts and miniatures as well as correspondence, invoices, and notes related to items of Keynes' business interest. The collected catalogues were published between 1973 and 2001 by household names such as Christie's, Sotheby's, and Maggs Bros. Ltd, and offer insight into the identity, condition, and demand of artifacts that informed Keynes' purchasing decisions. With the catalogues are notes written by Keynes that were either tucked into specific pages or found inside the cover. Several boxes in this collection contain books from the Sotheby's catalogue series Western Manuscripts and Miniatures, which describes artifacts between the ninth and nineteenth century. Papers related to the acquisition of manuscripts include correspondence with antiquarian booksellers regarding location and pricing. Keynes' professional relationships with these sellers stretched over decades. Many manuscripts referenced have annotated catalogue copies and invoices detailing their history and value. Lastly, this collection contains three artifacts obtained by Keynes that are partially identified by their short description and item number.

Arrangement

Organized into three series: I. Catalogues, 1973-2001; II. Manuscripts, 1804-2017; III. Professional papers, 1980-1995.
