CALL NUMBER: JWJ MSS 176

CREATOR: Richards, Lloyd, 1919-2006

TITLE: Lloyd Richards papers

DATES: 1944-2004

PHYSICAL DESCRIPTION: 97.89 linear feet (191 boxes) + 11 broadside folders

LANGUAGE: English

SUMMARY: The Lloyd Richards Papers document the life and work of the director, educator, and actor Lloyd Richards. The papers consist of production files, professional papers, photographs, correspondence, programs, audiovisual and printed material spanning the years 1944 to 2004. The papers primarily document the professional life of Lloyd Richards through his production files, professional papers, and Eugene O'Neill Memorial Theater Center administrative files. Production files contain materials from all stages of production for theater, television, and radio productions directed by Richards, including those he drafted while Dean of the Yale School of Drama and Artistic Director of the Yale Repertory Theatre, and in a few instances for early plays that Richards acted in. Correspondence in the production files reveals the close professional relationship that Richards had with playwright August Wilson through directing six of Wilson's plays. Professional papers include files from Richards's service on various committees, boards, councils, and related activities; his teaching files from positions at universities and colleges; his speeches and lectures; awards and honorary degrees; clippings and printed material; and other papers related to his professional life. The Eugene O'Neill Memorial Theater Center material consists of administrative files and photographs that document his work as Artistic Director of the National Playwright Conference and his involvement in other Center activities. The papers also include correspondence with organizations and individuals, almost entirely regarding his professional affiliation with various theater projects. Photographs in the collection provide images of Richards, productions, award and honorary degree ceremonies, and other places and people. Audiovisual materials include film, video and sound recordings and film footage of productions, interviews, and other recordings of interest to Richards. A small amount of personal papers concern Richards's service in the U.S. Army Air Corps, his citizenship, financial and medical information, and other personal matters.

Lloyd Richards (1919-2006)

Lloyd George Richards was born on June 29, 1919 in Toronto, to Albert George and Rose Isabella Richards. The family immigrated to the United States after seeing a flyer sent out by Henry Ford that advertised employment in his plant and settled in Detroit in 1923. Albert Richards died of diphtheria in 1928, leaving Rose to raise Lloyd and his four siblings alone. A few years later, Mrs. Richards was struck blind and Lloyd went to work to help support his family. Despite the difficult circumstances, all of the Richards children received an education and were urged to continue on to college. Richards entered Wayne University in Detroit and originally studied pre-law but he quickly shifted his focus to theater and radio drama. After graduating, Richards began volunteer service in the U.S. Army Air Corps, training with the nation's first unit of black pilots, the Tuskegee Airmen. Richards was never in active duty and returned to Detroit in 1945. There he co-founded the These Twenty People Company and The Actor's Company Repertory, and worked as a radio disc jockey for one year. He spent his nights and weekends working on productions and his days as a social worker.

In 1947, Richards moved to New York City to pursue an acting career. He waited tables and lived at the Y.M.C.A., focusing on auditions. At an audition for a one-man Equity Library Theater production, Richards met acting coach, actor, and director Paul Mann and studied with him until Mann asked him to become his teaching assistant for his actors' workshops. While Richards was a good actor and acted in several popular on- and off-Broadway plays, he wasn't considered a strong character actor and eventually focused solely on his directing. Mann's acting workshops would play an important role in Richards's development as a director. Through Mann, Richards met dancer and writer Barbara Davenport; they married in October 1957, and had two sons. He also met actor Sidney Poitier, who urged Richards to read and direct one play in particular, Lorraine Hansberry's A Raisin in the Sun. Richards worked hard to rally support for the production, and in 1959 the play debuted on Broadway in New York City to a standing ovation. The plot concerns an African-American family's experiences in a Chicago neighborhood and was the first play written by an African-American woman to be produced on Broadway, as well as the first play with an African-American director on Broadway. It is considered a landmark in American theater and social history. Richards went on to have a successful and prolific career directing theater, radio, and television.

In addition to his acting and directing in New York through the 1950s and 1960s, Richards returned to Detroit to direct summer theater at the Northland Playhouse (1955-1958), worked on radio productions, and opened the Lloyd Richards Studio for Actor Training in New York. In 1966, Richards was hired as Master Teacher of Acting at the new actor training program at New York University (1966-1972). From 1972-1979, he held the position of Professor of Theater and Cinema at Hunter College. In 1979, Richards was recruited for the position of Dean of Yale School of Drama and Artistic Director of the Yale Repertory Theatre, which he held until 1991.

When Richards was asked to be Artistic Director of the annual National Playwrights Conference (NPC) in 1968 at the Eugene O'Neill Theater Center in Waterford, CT, he took the opportunity to transform the conference into one of the most prestigious and intensive playwright opportunities in the world. NPC is where Richards met a young poet-turned-playwright, August Wilson. Wilson submitted work to the NPC several times and was rejected until he submitted Ma Rainey's Black Bottom in 1982, which gained him admission. Richards went on to direct five of Wilson's premieres, often at the Yale Repertory Theatre, and all went on to Broadway (Fences, Joe Turner's Come and Gone, The Piano Lesson, Two Trains Running, and Seven Guitars). Their professional relationship changed when they stopped working on Wilson's plays together, but the two remained friends.

At NPC, Richards mentored many young playwrights who went on to have successful writing careers, including Lee Blessing and Christopher Durang. In 1999, Richards retired as Artistic Director from NPC. At Yale, Richards directed and oversaw the premiere of plays that went on to tour nationally. Among these were Lee Blessing's Cobb, several of Athol Fugard's plays, and all but one of August Wilson's plays.

After retiring from Yale, Richards continued to teach in New York at the Actors Center and at the Actors Studio and occasionally directed. Throughout his teaching career, he was a visiting professor and lecturer at several universities and colleges. In honor of Richards's retirement, Yale University School of Drama created their its permanently endowed chair, "The Lloyd Richards Professor of Theatre Chair," and appointed him Professor Emeritus of the School of Drama. In addition to teaching, Richards gave his time and expertise to dozens of community theaters, professional committees, councils, boards, and fellowships. Richards received dozens of awards and honorary degrees throughout his career, including a Tony Award for Best Director for Fences in 1987 (he was nominated for a Tony several times) and a National Medal of Arts in 1993. He was admired as an influential director and educator, directing some of the twentieth century's most acclaimed actors.

While Richards worked and sometimes lived outside of New York City, he and Barbara considered the house on Manhattan's Upper West Side, where they lived since 1968, to be their home. Richards died in Manhattan on his 87th birthday of a heart attack.

Scope and Contents

The Lloyd Richards Papers document the life and work of the director, educator, and actor Lloyd Richards. The papers consist of production files, professional papers, photographs, correspondence, programs, audiovisual and printed material spanning the years 1944 to 2004.

The papers primarily document the professional life of Lloyd Richards through his production files, professional papers, and Eugene O'Neill Memorial Theater Center administrative files. Production files contain materials from all stages of production for theater, television, and radio productions directed by Richards, including those he drafted while Dean of the Yale School of Drama and Artistic Director of the Yale Repertory Theatre, and in a few instances for early plays that Richards acted in. Correspondence in the production files reveals the close professional relationship that Richards had with playwright August Wilson through directing six of Wilson's plays. Professional papers include files from Richards's service on various committees, boards, councils, and related activities; his teaching files from positions at universities and colleges; his speeches and lectures; awards and honorary degrees; clippings and printed material; and other papers related to his professional life. The Eugene O'Neill Memorial Theater Center material consists of administrative files and photographs that document his work as Artistic Director of the National Playwright Conference and his involvement in other Center activities.

The papers also include correspondence with organizations and individuals, almost entirely regarding his professional affiliation with various theater projects. Photographs in the collection provide images of Richards, productions, award and honorary degree ceremonies, and other places and people. Audiovisual materials include film, video and sound recordings and film footage of productions, interviews, and other recordings of interest to Richards. A small amount of personal papers concern Richards's service in the U.S. Army Air Corps, his citizenship, financial and medical information, and other personal matters.

Collection Contents

Series I: Production Files, 1954-2003

27.93 linear feet (53 boxes)

Files for each production listed may include prompt books; scripts; correspondence; contact sheets; contracts; financial and administrative records; casting files including actor resumes (sometimes accompanied by headshots); costume, lighting, and set designs, technical drawings, and related files; notes; research files; rights information; and posters, production programs and other printed material. The series documents the variety of roles Richards played in theater production during his career, including director, artistic director, producer, and actor. A small amount of correspondence concerning audience members' criticism and programs from various productions are filed at the end of the series.

The bulk of the correspondence is with Richards's lawyer, Albert I. DaSilva. Correspondence with August Wilson is almost always present in production files for plays written by Wilson.

Production cities, theaters and dates (when known) are listed under production titles. Station names are noted when a production aired on television.

Photographs of productions are found in Series V. Photographs. Audiovisual materials relating to productions are in Series VII. Audiovisual Materials.

Series II: Professional Papers, 1966-2002

26.8 linear feet (39 boxes)

Professional Papers includes Richards's files relating to his professional activity outside of productions and his Eugene O'Neill Memorial Theater Center duties.

General Files contains materials relating to Richards's service on committees, councils, boards, grant panels and his participation in consulting, artist-in-residencies, and fellowships. These files include correspondence, financial documents, itineraries, review reports, travel documents, conference proceedings, and printed material.

Teaching Files includes correspondence, class lists, notes, grade books, exams, syllabi, and printed materials from the various teaching positions that Richards held throughout his teaching career.

Speeches and Lectures contains transcripts, notes, and printed materials regarding speeches and lectures that Richards delivered as Dean of the Yale School of Drama, at other universities and colleges, at tribute and memorial services, upon receiving awards and honorary degrees, and at other events. Richards's speeches at Yale were delivered for school openings, commencements, annual reports, addressing the Yale corporation fellows, alumni events, and union disputes.

Awards and Honorary Degrees includes certificates, medals, plaques, trophies, and other commemorative objects received by Richards. Correspondence regarding awards and honorary degrees is in Series IV. Correspondence; photographs of events are in Series V. Photographs, and the drafts and notes for acceptance speeches are in the subseries Lectures and Speeches.

Subject Files contains printed materials and notes collected by Richards on specific topics. Other Papers includes writings by and interviews with Richards, notes and notebooks, agendas, address books, Rolodexes, publicity materials, writings of others, and programs for productions that Richards had no involvement in.

Series II. Professional Papers is organized into six subseries: General Files, Teaching Files, Speeches and Lectures, Awards and Honorary Degrees, Subject Files, and Other Papers.

Series III: Eugene O'Neill Memorial Theater Center, 1965-2001

16.39 linear feet (38 boxes)

The National Playwrights Conference subseries includes material compiled by the O'Neill Center administrative staff and contains files regarding planning and executing the annual National Playwrights Conferences. These materials include programs, catalogues, project files, cast lists, selection materials, evaluations, contracts, contact lists, copies of "The Scene" newsletter, financial documents, correspondence, photographs, reports, equipment lists and plans, critique notes, grant information, and publicity material. Materials in this subseries under the headings General Files and Binders are similar to each other.

The subseries General Files contains printed material, correspondence, financial documents, and other papers that relate to proceedings and projects of the Center.

Nearly all photographs in this subseries were taken by A. Vincent Scarano, the National Playwrights Conference photographer.

Additional photographs can be found in Series V. Photographs.

Series III. Eugene O'Neill Memorial Theater Center is organized into two subseries: National Playwrights Conference and General Files.

This series contains material documenting the general activities of the Eugene O'Neill Memorial Theater Center and more specifically its annual National Playwrights Conference, for which Richards was Artistic Director.

National Playwrights Conference

The subseries is organized under six headings: General Files, Correspondence, Binders, Playbills and Programs, Photographs, and Publicity.

Eveleth of the Eugene O'Neill Theater Center. It reads: Dear Lloyd: Enclosed is a VHS video tape copy of your interview with Natasha Krimova in its entirety for your archives. As per your request, it has not been edited. It was originally shot on two tapes, and I have indicated the point on your copy where the second tape begins. I have also included the first rough cut edited for demonstration purposes from the footage taped over the summer. As I mentioned in our phone conversation, this demo tape is being shown to Potential funders for Horizons Beyond...The O'Neill. Since I had only one day to edit, the tape is focused on some of the people we interviewed this summer and some of the ideas they presented, rather than a medly of images. So far it has been very well received. I trust you'll be pleased with the results. It is included, along with two bookmarks, in a folder in Box 153. The note reads: Dear Lloyd and Barbara -- Enclosed is a videotape of Tommy's Memorial, along with bookmarkers - one of them is especially made for Lloyd, with a pair of PEARS, walking side-by-side, as equals. It made Tommy feel so happy that you enjoyed the pears he sent. When I was packing up things in Tommy's apartment, I came across something that I am sure he intended to send to you. I know this was written recently, because I'm the one who gave him the computer and the printer, which had all the different typeface fonts - I had just taught him how to play around with different letterings. There is no doubt among all who knew him that Tommy reserved a special place in his heart for you. Tommy tried all of his father's life to prove that he was a good son, a worthy son. But Bob Hollis never understood his eldest son's sensitivities or artistry. Instead, Tommy was always punished for not going hunting with him. And every time Tommy was sent to his room, his little brother was the appointed "snitch," instructed to report all the times that Tommy would start writing: "Daddy, Tommy's writing again!" It's not that Bob Hollis didn't love his son. But as long as Tommy continued with artistic endeavors, he would never measure up as the man that his father demanded him to be, to walk alongside him, to carry on his name. Then, when his father died suddenly, those hopes of ever winning his respect died with him. "Thank you, Lloyd," he has said in our conversations many a time. To be able to be appreciated, loved, cared for nurtured, and finally, honored - all the things a child yearns for - you have given him. And now, perhaps a pre-destined plan from several lifetimes past, a soul pact with the strongest friend of one's lifetime: Tommy's best friend, Reggie Montgomery, has passed. As with Tommy, a friend went to his apartment when Reggie failed to return calls in a few days. The cops had to climb the fire escape, break a window, and enter, where they found him, in almost the same position, same area that Tommy was also discovered. Tommy did not have an autopsy. The Medical Examiner deduced, after having seen all the medication, that Tommy died of a heart attack. Reggie had an autopsy. The official cause of death has not been determined, but it is leaning toward heart attack, due to all the medication. Again, I was the designated key keeper. And, again, I plan for Reggie's Memorial, after I help pack up his things. His close friends aren't painfully grieving Reggie's passing. Spiritually poetic, almost like a married couple when	2001 November 9

one goes, it's not uncommon that the other shortly dies, simply of a broken heart, for Tommy was found on September 13th, and Reggie was found on January 13th, exactly 4 months to the day. Love to you always, Lloyd and Barbara, [?]

Interviews with Lloyd Richards

"Lloyd Richards interviewed by N.G. Nesmith"	2002
Audiocassettes include a letter from Nathaniel Nesmith to Richards dated November 6, 2002. It reads: Dear Mr. Richards: Greetings. Enclosed are the tapes of the interview. I send my many thanks for allowing me to interview you. I am happy with the result and feel that the interview will represent your accomplishments. As I stated, due to commitments and a December vacation, i will not be able to transcribe the interview until early January. Please trust that I will do all within my power to place the interview in a very good publication. I will keep you abreast of the steps I am taking. I will be in touch. All the best, Nathaniel Nesmith.
