Biographical / Historical

The Yale University Women's Organization was established in 1965. The organization is open to women members of the Yale community, including faculty, staff, wives of faculty and staff, and other women affiliated with the university. Its main activities include educational lectures, social events, and a scholarship program. The organization undertook an oral history project in 1999, culminating in videotape, One Story, Many Voices: An Oral History of the Yale University Women's Organization. The project documents the founding and activities of the organization, spousal privileges, the Yale Newcomer's Club, and the Information and Counseling Center for Women (Yale Women's Center).

Scope and Contents

The materials consist of audiotapes, a videotape, transcripts, and project and background files relating to "One Story, Many Voices: An Oral History of the Yale University Women's Organization."

General note

Forms part of Yale Record Group 40 (YRG 40), Records of Yale clubs, societies and organizations.

Arrangement

The records are arranged by record type.

Collection Contents

Accession 2003-A-076: Yale University Women's Organization history project records, 2000-2002

The records are arranged in two sections: Project and Background Files and Interviews. The project and background files include a subject index and an appendix of material related to the history of the Yale University Women's Organization, which supplements the information provided by the interviewees. Cross references link specific interviews to related material in the appendix.
