Biographical / Historical

Thomas Nast was born in Bavaria in 1840. He and his family emigrated to the United States, settling in New York, when Nast was six. A childhood penchant for drawing led to some formal training in the arts. Nast's career as an illustrator and political satirist began at the age of 15, working for Leslie's Illustrated Weekly Magazine.

Nast enjoyed much success and notoriety during his long tenure as a cartoonist for Harper's Weekly, from 1862 to 1886. He lampooned the South during the Civil War, earning praise from Abraham Lincoln. A series of Nast's cartoons from 1869 to 1871 led to the break-up of a ring of corrupt New York politicians and conviction of its leader, William Marcy "Boss" Tweed. Nast also invented the Democratic and Republican party symbols – the donkey and the elephant, respectively – and can be credited with shaping the visual traditions of Uncle Sam, Columbia, and Santa Claus.
