Biographical / Historical

John Shaw Boyce, 1889-1971, worked early in his career as forest pathologist in the U.S. Forest Service and the Department of Agriculture. During World War I he was in charge of inspections of the wooden parts of airplanes. From 1929 until his retirement in 1958, he was professor of forest pathology at Yale, and during this time was an active member of the Society of American Foresters and associate editor of the Journal of Forestry.

Scope and Contents

The papers, 1912-1958, consist of correspondence, reports, research material, and printed matter on subjects about which Boyce wrote, such as decay in airplane wood, tree diseases, and blights.

They are arranged alphabetically by subject. The following folder listing is based on a preliminary inventory.

The John Shaw Boyce Papers were given to Yale University Library in January 1976 by G. Evelyn Hutchinson.
