Biographical / Historical

Ralph Albertson was born to Richard Albertson and Serepta Aldrich in Jamesport, New York, in 1866. He studied at Oberlin College and Theological Seminary and in 1891 he was ordained as a Congregationalist minister. Four years later he left the ministry to found the Christian Commonwealth of Georgia, a utopian society based on the principles of Christian Socialism. After the dissolution of this community in 1900, he founded a new utopian venture in rural Massachusetts, known as The Farm. Albertson was also the editor of various publications, including The American Cooperator, The Boston Common, and The Twentieth Century Magazine. He was the secretary of the Cooperative Association of America, and worked to reorganize department stores according to democratic cooperative principles. In 1917, Albertson was a Young Men's Christian Association representative to American troops along the Siberian front in Russia. He was awarded the Cross of St. George by the Russians, and later wrote a book based on his experiences abroad, Fighting Without a War. After his return to the states, he became president of the New York mercantile concern, Albertson, Becknard and Allen, Inc. Ralph Albertson died in 1951 in New York City.

Collection Contents

Series I: Correspondence, 1903-1974

The series is comprised mostly of the incoming and outgoing correspondence of Ralph Albertson, and is arranged alphabetically by last name of correspondent. The majority of the correspondence is routine, and rarely consists of more than a few letters between Albertson and the writers. The bulk of these letters are from the periods 1905 to 1910, 1919 to 1920 and 1947 to 1950. There is one folder at the end of the series of the correspondence of Dorothy Albertson, Ralph Albertson's third wife.
