Biographical / Historical

Harold Phelps Stokes, the son of banker Anson Phelps Stokes and Helen Louisa (Phelps) Stokes, was born in New York City on January 10, 1887. He attended Groton and entered Yale University in 1905, where he studied Oriental history. Stokes graduated in 1909. He spent the following year travelling around the world with his classmate Allen Klots.

Returning to America in 1911, Stokes joined the staff of Oswald Garrison Villard's New York Evening Post. In 1913 he became the Post's Albany correspondent. He left this job in 1917 to serve with the 77th Division of the AEF. In 1919, Stokes rejoined the staff of the Post in Paris and reported the Peace Conference. Later that year, Stokes succeeded David Lawrence as head of the Post's Washington bureau. There he covered many important stories, including the debate on the Treaty of Versailles in the Senate and the conference for the limitation of armaments. In 1920, Stokes married Elizabeth Miner King, who was also a reporter.

After thirteen years with the New York Evening Post, Stokes resigned in 1923. For a while he wrote a syndicated column entitled "The A.B.C. of National Affairs." In 1924 he became secretary to Herbert Hoover, then Secretary of Commerce.

In 1926 Stokes joined the editorial staff of The New York Times. At the Times he specialized in writing about government in New York and about parole and prisons, traffic problems, and mass transit. He also was a frequent contributor to The New York Times Magazine. In 1937, ill health forced Stokes to resign from the Times. He lived in the West for a while before settling in Washington, D.C. He continued to do some free-lance writing and maintained an active interest in national and world affairs. He died in 1970 at the age of 83.

Scope and Contents

As a newspaperman, Stokes had a wide variety of interests. His papers span more than half a century and touch on many topics. One of Stokes' greatest concerns was the government of New York City and State. His work brought him into contact with political figures from throughout the state. As a reporter and editorial writer he was involved in many disputes on zoning, conservation, voter representation, patronage, and other political issues.

In addition to these topics, Stokes' correspondence and papers are concerned with subjects like foreign policy, parole and prison reform, public utilities, civil service reform, and the Alger Hiss case. The Stokes Papers also provide some insight into the policies and personalities behind the New York Evening Post. There is, however, very little material on Stokes' association with Herbert Hoover.

SERIES I. CORRESPONDENCE, contains letters from many prominent American politicians, newspapermen, and public servants. Among them are: Dean Gooderham Acheson (6 items), Norman H. Davis (7 items), John Huston Finley (5 items), John Palmer Gavit (14 items), Edwin F. Gay (12 items), Henry Hazlitt (5 items), Herbert Clark Hoover (13 items), Allen Trafford Klots (10 items), Arthur Krock (18 items), David Lawrence (5 items), George McAneny (16 items), Andrew William Mellon (2 items), Charles Merz (16 items), Robert Moses (67 items), Adolph S. Ochs (6 items), Frances Perkins (18 items), Alfred Emanuel Smith (12 items), Henry Lewis Stimson (12 items), Anson Phelps Stokes (1874-1958) (55 items), Simeon Strusky (37 items), Arthur Hays Sulzberger (36 items), Edward Livingstone Trudeau (15 items), Oswald Garrison Villard (18 items), and Robert Ferdinand Wagner (13 items).

SERIES II. DIARIES, MEMORANDA, NOTES AND WRITINGS contains manuscripts of material written by Stokes. This includes articles by Stokes, a diary of his trip around the world in 1910, and a diary of some events surrounding the conference for the limitation of armaments in 1921. Also in this series are numbers of memoranda and notes written by Stokes on various topics. The series includes a copy of Stokes' Dispatches 1919-1921 and a copy of his introductory essay for Simeon Strunsky's America. Letters to the editor, book reviews, and some newspaper-stories (clippings) are also filed in this section.

SERIES III. the NEWSPAPER FILE, consists of twenty-three bound volumes of newspaper clippings. The volumes cover December, 1913 to May, 1917; January, 1919 to March 1922; and January, 1923 to April, 1924. The two volumes for April to December, 1922 were not found with the collection and appear to be lost. The twenty-three volumes contain articles by Stokes and other newspapermen on domestic politics and foreign affairs. They are completely indexed on file cards. These volumes probably served Stokes as a reference and research tool in his work.

SERIES IV. the SUBJECT FILE, contains a variety of material on subjects of interest to Stokes. This material includes magazine articles, pamphlets, newspaper clippings, and other informational materials. Of particular interest is a large section of newspaper and magazine clippings on Alger Hiss. Also included is material used by Stokes in preparing his book Simeon Strunsky's America. A large amount of printed material on Robert Moses has been removed from this series and placed with the Robert Moses Papers, in Manuscripts and Archives, Sterling Memorial Library, Yale University.

Series III: NEWSPAPER FILE, 1913-1917, 1919-1924

The numbers listed in the title refer to volume numbers. These twenty-three volumes are arranged chronologically. There is a gap in 1917 and 1918 due to the first World War. Two lost volumes cause a gap in 1922. The twenty-three are indexed on file cards that direct the researcher to the proper volume and page number for a given subject.

For the first series of file cards, the volume numbers refer to the Arabic numbers (vols 1-6). For the second series, they refer to Roman numerals, so that in box 12 or 13 a reference to vol. 6 is really a reference to vol. VI (= vol. 14). There are cards for the missing volumes XIII and XIV; but there appear to be no cards for volumes 7 and 8.

The volumes have been microfilmed and discarded; they are now available as Hist. MSS Film HM 108.
