James Lippincott Goodwin Papers (MS 243). Manuscripts and Archives, Yale University Library.

Biographical / Historical

James Lippincott Goodwin was an architect, forester, and conservationist. He received a masters degree in forestry from Yale University in 1910 and became a private forestry consultant, as well as a landscape architect. From 1913-1914, Goodwin was field secretary of the Connecticut State Park and Forest Commission. He served as president of the Connecticut Forest and Park Association from 1958-1961. The following paragraphs on Goodwin are taken from History of the Class of 1905, Yale College Volume X, page 58.

James Lippincott Goodwin: Secretary-treasurer, Talcott Mountain Forest Protective Association, 15 Lewis Street, Hartford, Conn.; residence, 10 Woodside Circle, Hartford.

"My chief interests," Goodwin says, "are the management of my forest tract of 1,700 acres in the Town of Hampton, Windham County, Conn. From a small beginning this has grown and developed since 1914. It has been interesting to watch trees planted twenty or thirty years ago grow to merchantable size which now can be cut and from which there is an appreciable income. In 1951 I compiled and wrote an illustrated history of its development, entitled Pine Acres Forest, from 1914 to 1952. I also own a tract of 1,000 acres in Moore County, near Pinehurst, N.C. On account of the fast growth of Southern pines, this has been a very successful business enterprise since 1930.

After serving for some years as a director of the Connecticut Forest and Park Association, Goodwin is now president of the organization. He is a member of the committee of the Hartford Y.M.C.A. camps property committee, a trustee of Trinity College and the Wadsworth Atheneum Art Museum, and a member of the Chapter of Christ Church Cathedral. He is also serving as vice-president of the Society for the Protection of New Hampshire Forests, is a senior fellow of the Society of American Foresters, and belongs to the Massachusetts and North Carolina Forestry associations, the Connecticut Historical Society, the Connecticut Antiquarian and Landmarks Society, and the New York Yale Club.

His first wife, Dorothy Wendell Davis, died in December, 1945, and in November, 1946, he was married in New York City to Genevieve Hancock Harlow.

Scope and Contents

This collection consists of the correspondence, business records surveying field books, and map folios of James Lippincott Goodwin, conservationist, forester, landscape architect, surveyor, philanthropist and patron of the arts. The main body of the records and correspondence commences with 1917 and relates to Goodwin's concern with conservation and the fostering of better forestry principles on the land he had purchased at Clark's Corner, Connecticut, the beginning of Pine Acres Forest. The collection covers the period from 1882, James L. Goodwin's early childhood to his demise in 1967.

James L. Goodwin was born in New York City, in 1881. On his maternal side, he was a member of the Philadelphia Lippincott family of publishing fame. His father, James Junis Goodwin, was a cousin of Junis Pierpont Morgan, Trustee of Groton School, at which school, James L. Goodwin attended, befriended F. D. Roosevelt, and was graduated from in 1900. After attending Yale University and graduating in 1905, James L. Goodwin attended Yale Law School but received his Masters in Forestry in 1910 and became a Private Forestry Consultant. His first marriage to Dorothy Wendell Davis ended on her death in 1945. He was married in 1946 to Genevieve Harlow.

His firm of landscape architects was called James L. Goodwin Associates, Incorporated. He managed his own forest properties at Hampton, Connecticut from 1914 and at Carthage, North Carolina from 1927. From 1913-1914, he was Field Secretary of the Connecticut State Park and Forest Commission. Mr. Goodwin was actively involved in the administration of the Talcott Mountain Forest Protective Association and President of the Connecticut Forest and Park Association from 1958-1961. His association correspondence with various conservation groups dates from 1917-1967, (Boxes 1-13).

The Carthage correspondence (Boxes 14-16) illustrates Mr. Goodwin's perception in choice of lieutenants for his timber operations. In 1927 when James L. Goodwin initially attempted to purchase Colin G. Spencer's Moore County, North Carolina land, sight unseen, Mr. Spencer declined but eventually agreed to the sale of 200 acres. Gradually, a total of 1,100 acres was purchased at Carthage, by Colin Spencer for Mr. Goodwin's forest experiment. Mr. Spencer's management of Carthage Plantation was to their mutual benefit. While James Goodwin financed the forestry operation and advised better forestry practices, Colin Spencer supervised the planting and improved cutting of the trees and was the sole customer for the timber taken from the tract. Mr. Spencer served as President of the North Carolina Forestry Association and as a director of the American Forestry Association.

Harold H. Sweeton, Forester of Great Pond Forest, and James L. Goodwin supervised the Simsbury operation so well that in 1956 Great Pond Forest was deemed Tree Farm number one in Connecticut by the American Tree Farm System. (Boxes 23-30).

The chief value of these papers lies in the meticulous recording of forest and farm operations. In the words of a staff member of the United States Department of Agriculture, Forest Service, "We are deeply impressed by your Pine Acres operation and by the infinite degree of management and attention that Mr. Stocking has given this property. His detailed records of input and output by compartment and sub-compartment is something to be admired. We believe that his emphasis on the production of quality forest products is sound and his success in marketing these products, a phase on which many forest owners stumble, is exceptional." This statement should be extended to Mr. Sweeton's work at Great Pond Nursery and Forest and Mr. Spencer's at Carthage Plantation. There are twenty-six ledgers (L1-L26) and sixty-one manuscript boxes (41-101) containing records of Annual Reports, Farm Accounts, Farm Labor Accounts, Man Labor Records, Payroll Note-books and Timber Records, and Work-sheets from 1913-1964.
