Biographical / Historical

Hiram Bingham I (1789-1869), pioneer missionary to the Hawaiian Islands, was born October 30, 1789, in Bennington, Vermont, the seventh of thirteen children of Calvin and Lydia (Denton) Bingham. He graduated from Middlebury College in 1816 and from Andover Theological Seminary in 1819. In the fall of 1819, having decided to enter the foreign mission service, he was ordained (September 29) under the auspices of the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions (ABCFM) of Boston, married (October 11) Sybil Moseley of Westfield, Massachusetts, and sailed (October 23) from Boston on the brig Thaddeus, with other missionaries bound for the Sandwich Islands.

The Bingham family arrived at Honolulu on April 19, 1820, and began the work of civilizing and converting the natives. Reducing the Hawaiian language to writing, the missionaries began teaching the natives to read. Bingham wrote Elementary Lessons in Hawaiian (1822), First Book for Children (1831), and Scripture Catechism (1831). In October 1825, he began translating the New Testament into Hawaiian, and by 1839 he and his associates had completed the translation of the entire Bible.

Sybil Moseley was born September 12, 1792. She and Hiram Bingham had seven children: Sophia Moseley (born 1820 November 9), Levi Parsons (1822 December 31; died in infancy), Jeremiah Evarts (1824 February 11; died in infancy), Lucy Whiting (1826 October 26), Elizabeth Kaahumanu (1829 March 8), Hiram, Jr. (1831 August 16), and Lydia (1834 December 25).

Sybil Bingham's health gradually declined, and in August 1840, the family left for New England, hoping that her health would improve. Hiram Bingham spent the following years travelling through New England and to Washington, DC, telling of the missionaries' accomplishments in Hawaii. He was unable to gain approval for returning to Hawaii, however, and in September 1846, the ABCFM severed the Bingham family from its employ. Hiram's lengthy Residence of Twenty-one Years in the Sandwich Islands, describing the early missionary efforts there, was published in 1847.

Sybil M. Bingham died February 27, 1848, at Easthampton, Massachusetts. Hiram continued his preaching and writing, serving for a time as pastor of an African church in New Haven. After his marriage to Naomi Emma Morse (1854 August 24), he worked with her in establishing a boarding and day school for young ladies in New Haven. Hiram Bingham I died November 11, 1869, in New Haven.

Hiram Bingham II (1831-1908), missionary to the Gilbert Islands, was born August 16, 1831, in Honolulu. When he was nine years old, his parents, Hiram and Sybil (Moseley) Bingham, returned to New England, where he received his education at Williston Academy, Easthampton, Massachusetts, and at Yale, where he graduated in 1853. After spending one year as principal of the Northampton (Massachusetts) High School and a second as a private tutor, he entered Andover Seminary. Poor health forced him to leave the seminary early in 1856, but on November 9, 1856, he was ordained in New Haven. Within a month, he married Minerva Clarissa Brewster (also known as Clara Bingham) of Northampton (November 18), and sailed with her from Boston on the brig Morning Star (December 2), with plans to establish missionary outposts in Micronesia. Clara Brewster, daughter of Jonathan Brewster (1793-1862), was born October 19, 1834. She was a teacher in Northampton when Hiram met her.

Hiram and Clara Bingham reached the Gilbert Islands in September 1857, and began their difficult mission task at Abaiang. In 1865 he visited the United States but returned the following year as commander of the second Morning Star, on which he toured mission outposts in Micronesia. From 1868 to 1873, Bingham resided in Honolulu, completing his translation of the Gilbertese New Testament. After another two year stay at Abaiang, where he preached, taught in the school, and worked on a Gilbertese dictionary, Bingham's poor health compelled him to return to Honolulu, where his son, Hiram Bingham III, was born in 1875. Except for three visits to the United States, Hiram and Clara spent the remainder of their lives at their home, "Gilbertinia," in Honolulu. They were joined there by Hiram's two sisters, Elizabeth and Lydia. Lydia, who had left New England in the late 1860s to start a girls' school in Honolulu, later married the Reverend Titus Coan, a venerable missionary. Soon after their marriage, Titus Coan died. Lydia returned to the Bingham family home, Gilbertinia.

By 1890 Bingham had completed translating the entire Bible into the Gilbertese language, and it was published in 1892. His other publications include The Story of the Morning Star (1866), a Gilbertese hymn book (1880), commentaries on the Gospels and the book of Acts, a Gilbert Islands Bible Dictionary (1895), and a Gilbertese dictionary (1908). Clara Bingham shared fully in her husband's missionary activities, and in 1875 she published a volume of Bible Stories in the Gilbertese. Together, they expanded the vocabulary and provided written form for the Gilbertese language.

Clara Bingham died November 17, 1903. Hiram Bingham II died October 25, 1908, following an operation at Johns Hopkins Hospital in Baltimore, while he was in the United States to supervise publication of his Gilbertese dictionary.

Hiram Bingham III (1875-1956), explorer and United States senator, was born November 19, 1875, in Honolulu. He studied at Phillips Academy, Andover, Massachusetts (1892-1894), before entering Yale. After graduating from Yale in 1898, he received an MA in History from the University of California, Berkeley (1900), an MA (1901) and PhD (1905) from Harvard University. He served as an instructor at Harvard (1901-1904) and at Princeton (1905-1907), before becoming lecturer in South American History and Geography at Yale (1907-1910). At Yale he was promoted to assistant professor (1910-1915) and professor (1915-1924), and from 1908 to 1930 he served as curator of the Collections on South American History. During this period he became an important critic of American foreign policy toward Latin America, publishing attacks on the Monroe Doctrine and arguing for new attitudes toward Latin America. Bingham spent a large part of his time at Yale engaged in South American exploration. In 1906-1907 he had traced the course of Simon Bolivar's famous march of 1819, across Venezuela and Colombia. After attending the First Pan American Scientific Congress in Santiago, Chile in December, 1908, he undertook a second expedition exploring the old Spanish trade route from Buenos Aires to Lima, Peru. In Peru, he became interested in Inca civilization, and in 1911 he directed the first of three Yale Peruvian expeditions in an effort to locate the true last Inca capital. This expedition discovered the spectacular Inca ruins at Machu Picchu, and in 1912 and 1914-1915 the National Geographic Society joined Yale in sponsoring expeditions to explore Machu Picchu and the surrounding region.

In 1916 Bingham attended the Republican National Convention and became president of the Connecticut Hughes Alliance, helping to organize the state's Republican campaign. Having joined the Connecticut National Guard, he spent part of the summer of 1916 as captain of the Yale batteries at their encampment in Tobyhanna, Pennsylvania. Early in 1917, he attended the Curtiss Flying School in Miami, and when the United States entered the World War, he was appointed major in the Air Service. In 1918 he served as head of the U.S. Army flying school at Issoudun, France. After the war, Bingham retained his interest in aviation, serving from 1928 to 1935 as president of the National Aeronautic Association.

In 1922, Hiram Bingham III was elected Lieutenant Governor of Connecticut on the Republican ticket. Two years later he won election as Governor, but before he took office, Senator Frank Brandegee died and Bingham won the special election of December 1924, to fill his vacant seat. On January 7, 1925, Bingham took the oath of office as Governor of Connecticut, gave the longest inaugural address on record, and resigned his office. On the following day he took the oath of office as United States Senator and travelled to Washington to assume his new position. He was re-elected in 1926 to a full six-year term. In the Senate, Bingham was a staunch supporter of President Coolidge, played an active part in aviation legislation, chaired the Committee on Territories and Insular Affairs, and was a member of the Finance Committee. In November 1929, he was censured by the Senate for "impropriety" in bringing a Connecticut manufacturer's lobbyist into an executive session of the Finance Committee. During the Hoover administration, he worked on the Appropriations Committee, participated in the movement to repeal the Eighteenth Amendment, and campaigned against the Child Labor Amendment. He was defeated for re-election in 1932.

Hiram Bingham III married Alfreda Mitchell on November 20, 1900. They had seven sons. On March 27, 1937, they were divorced. Bingham married Suzanne (Carroll) Hill on June 28, 1937.

After leaving the Senate early in 1933, Bingham resumed historical research for several years and pursued business activities as a director in the Washington Loan and Trust Company, the Colmena Oil Company, Flagler Grove Estates, and the U.S. Air Company. During the Second World War he was employed by the U.S. Navy as a lecturer at naval training schools in the Pacific theatre and elsewhere. He visited Peru in 1948 for the opening of the Hiram Bingham Highway leading to Machu Picchu. In 1951 President Truman appointed him chairman of the Civil Service Loyalty Review Board. He died June 6, 1956, in Washington, DC, where he had resided since his second marriage in 1937. Bingham's numerous publications concerning Latin American history, foreign policy, Peruvian exploration, aviation, politics, and other topics include the following books: The Journal of an Expedition across Venezuela and Colombia (1909); Across South America: An Account of a Journey from Buenos Aires to Lima (1911); The Monroe Doctrine, an Obsolete Shibboleth (1913); An Explorer in the Air Service (1920); Inca Land: Explorations in the Highlands of Peru (1922); Machu Picchu, a Citadel of the Incas (1930); Elihu Yale, the American Nabob of Queen Square (1939); and Lost City of the Incas, the Story of Machu Picchu and Its Builders (1948).

Note: for additional information about Hiram Bingham III, see the Yale Peruvian Expedition Papers (MS 664).

Alfreda (Mitchell) Bingham (1874-1967) was born in New York City on December 29, 1874, the daughter of Alfred and Annie o. (Tiffany) Mitchell. The Mitchells owned homes in New York City, New London, Connecticut, and, after 1900, an estate at Port Antonio, Jamaica. Alfreda and her younger sister Charly travelled with the family through Europe, Egypt and Japan. On November 20, 1900, Alfreda married Hiram Bingham III. They had seven sons: Woodbridge, born 1901 November 20; Hiram IV, 1903 July 17; Alfred Mitchell, 1905 February 20; Charles Tiffany, 1906 August 31; Brewster, 1908 September 1; Mitchell, 1910 November 20; and Jonathan Brewster, 1914 April 24. All seven sons attended Hamden Hall in New Haven and graduated from Groton. All except Mitchell graduated from Yale. Alfreda and Hiram Bingham were divorced on March 27, 1937. In August 1937, Alfreda married Henry Gregor, a composer and concert pianist.

Henry Gregor was born January 1, 1886, in Moscow, where his father was then engaged in business. He received his education in Germany and studied at the Berlin Conservatory, before emigrating to the United States in 1925. After teaching music at the National Park Seminary in Washington, DC, for several years, he joined the music faculty of the University of Miami in Coral Gables. Henry Gregor died on January 20, 1964, and Alfreda died on August 27, 1967, at the age of 92.

Collection Contents

Series I: Hiram Bingham I, 1811-1920

1 linear foot (2 boxes)

Series I, Hiram Bingham I, contains papers of Hiram Bingham I (1789-1869) and his first wife, Sybil (Moseley) Bingham (1792-1848). Correspondence includes letters sent and received while serving as missionaries to Hawaii, as well as personal and family letters, dated 1819-1869. In addition to original letters, there are typed transcripts and photostatic copies of letters deposited elsewhere. There are typed transcripts of Bingham's accounts with the Sandwich Islands mission, 1833-1840, and correspondence, 1821-1850, for which microfilm copies of the originals exist in the Manuscripts and Archives microfilm collection. Writings of Hiram Bingham I contains diaries, journals, notebooks, and other manuscripts, dating from 1811 to 1826. The only item relating to his A Residence of Twenty-one Years in the Sandwich Islands (1847) is a printed excerpt (1920) of one portion of the book. Writings of Sybil (Moseley) Bingham consists of her journal, 1811-1847, including photostatic and typewritten copies of extracts, and her manuscript, "Select Hawaiian Phrases." Writings of Elizabeth K. Bingham consists of two brief journals. Personal papers contains documents concerning publication of Bingham's Residence of Twenty-one Years, a drawing of the missionary settlement in 1820, family history papers, a photograph of Hiram Bingham I, and diplomas. The final section, Printed matter, contains "A Narrative of Five Youths from the Sandwich Islands" (1816), a list of members of the Maternal Association of the Sandwich Islands Mission (1854), a biographical sketch of Sybil (Moseley) Bingham by her daughter, Lydia (Bingham) Coan (1895), and programs for the Hawaiian Missions Centennial (1919-1920).

Each section of Series I is arranged chronologically.

Series II: Hiram Bingham II, 1831-1917

4.5 linear feet (11 boxes)

Series II, Hiram Bingham II, contains papers of Hiram Bingham II (1831-1908) and his wife, Minerva Clarissa (Brewster) Bingham (1834-1903). The first section, Correspondence, includes letters from friends, associates, and relatives, dated from 1841 to 1908. Many of the early letters were received by Minerva Clarissa Brewster before her marriage, including letters from her father, Jonathan Brewster. A large portion of the letters after 1892 are from their son, Hiram Bingham III, and much of the correspondence during 1908 relates to Bingham's efforts to publish his Gilbertese dictionary. Writings of Hiram Bingham II consists of early school notebooks (1841-1846), journals (1844-1854), sermons (1856-1878), a Bible Class record book (1874-1881), and published articles and letters (1856-1908). Writings of Minerva Clarissa (Brewster) Bingham consists of journals and diaries, (1856-1885) and a notebook of minutes of meetings (1887-1894). Gilbertese language materials contains manuscripts and printed matter written in the Gilbertese language or concerning Gilbertese publications. These include articles written by Hiram and Clara Bingham, hymns, lists of Gilbertese books, several issues of a Gilbertese periodical, and a history of the American missions work in the Gilbert Islands (1857-1917). Hiram Bingham's writings in this section include notes, the bound manuscript, and the printed edition of his Gilbertese New Testament (1885); "Outlines of a Grammar of the Gilbert Island Dialect" (1861); the manuscript, notes, and supplements for the English Gilbertese dictionary (1900); and "Gilbertese Commentary on the Acts of the Apostles" (1904). Personal and Biographical papers includes the printed sermon preached at Hiram Bingham II's ordination, with the charge to the evangelist given by Hiram Bingham I; manuscripts concerning missionary activities; articles and programs commemorating Hiram Bingham I; legal and financial papers; drawings, lithographs and photographs; and articles about Hiram and Minerva Clarissa (Brewster) Bingham. The final section, Printed matter, includes pamphlets and articles about foreign missions, devotional books, an article by Titus M. Coan, the obituary of Lydia (Bingham) Coan, sermons, programs and invitations, news clippings, maps, and advertisements.

Correspondence, Writings of Hiram Bingham II, Writings of Minerva Clarissa (Brewster) Bingham, and Gilbertese language materials are arranged chronologically. Personal and biographical papers and Printed matter are arranged chronologically under each type of material.

Series III: Hiram Bingham III, Correspondence, 1883-1960*8 linear feet (19 boxes)*

Series III, Hiram Bingham III, Correspondence, is organized in two sections, Family correspondence and General correspondence. Family correspondence consists of letters exchanged by members of the immediate family of Hiram Bingham III (1875-1956), including his father, Hiram Bingham II, his wife, Alfreda (Mitchell) Bingham, and his seven sons. In addition, there are letters from Alfreda's parents, Alfred and Annie O. (Tiffany) Mitchell, and her sister and brother-in-law, Charly (Mitchell) and James Jeans. General correspondence consists of all other letters received by Hiram Bingham III, including those from other relatives, such as his aunt, Lydia (Bingham) Coan. This section contains incoming and outgoing correspondence with friends, professional colleagues and associates, scholars in Latin American history and foreign affairs, political and governmental officials, and others. These letters are dated from 1883 to 1955, with the greatest number for the years 1913-1923. Correspondence related to Bingham's activities as director of the Yale Peruvian expeditions, 1911-1915, is filed with the Yale Peruvian Expedition Papers (MS 664). For a partial list of correspondents in General correspondence, see the Appendix. Dates of letters sent to Hiram Bingham are listed in the card catalog in box 113.

List of Selected Correspondents

Series V: Hiram Bingham III, Latin America, 1842-1930*11.75 linear feet (28 boxes)*

Series V, Hiram Bingham III, Latin America, consists of materials relating to Bingham's scholarship in Latin American history, not including specific teaching functions and Peruvian exploration. The first section, Writings of Hiram Bingham III, consists of manuscripts, notes, and printed editions of his works, including articles on the Scots Darien colony, South American history, United States relations with Latin America, and the Monroe Doctrine. Bingham's writings represented in this section include The Journal of an Expedition across Venezuela and Colombia (1909), The Monroe Doctrine: An Obsolete Shibboleth (1913), and the manuscript of his lectures on the Scots Darien Company, delivered at Johns-Hopkins University in 1910. The second section, Scrapbooks, consists of scrapbooks containing newspaper clippings, photographs, and other material concerning Panama, Brazil, Venezuela, Colombia, South America, and Latin America. Pan-American Conferences contains invitations, reports, programs, articles, and other papers concerning the Pan-American Congress, 1908-1916, and correspondence, instructions for delegates, printed matter, and clippings concerning the Pan-American Day at Yale, 1916 January 14. The final section, Reference file, consists of research notes, pamphlets, articles, newsclippings, books, bibliographies, and other reference material concerning most of the countries in Latin America. This section also includes Bingham's note cards concerning place names in Peru, the Yale Peruvian Expedition, books, index-bibliography, and a chronological index.

Writings of Hiram Bingham III and Scrapbooks are arranged chronologically. Pan-American conferences is arranged by type of material. Reference file is arranged alphabetically by name of country, with note cards at the end.

Series VI: Hiram Bingham III, War service and aviation, 1914-1943

3.25 linear feet (8 boxes)

Series VI, Hiram Bingham III, War service and aviation, contains materials regarding Bingham's military activities, 1916-1918, and his interest in aviation. The first section, Correspondence, relates primarily to his service at the Connecticut National Guard encampment in Pennsylvania (1916), with a few letters dated 1917 January-1919 January. Company records consists of military orders, printed matter, and other papers related to the National Guard encampment. Financial records consists of vouchers, journals, receipts, and other financial papers of the National Guard during 1916. Marshall Foch's visit to Yale consists of newsclippings, a scrapbook, and accounts of Foch's visit in November 1921, by Hiram, Alfreda, and Woodbridge Bingham. The final section, Aviation, consists of materials relating to Bingham's service with the A.E.F., 1917-1918, and his involvement in aviation organizations and government committees dealing with aviation affairs from 1918 to 1935. This material includes some correspondence, lists of complimentary copies, photographs, and a scrapbook concerning his book, An Explorer in the Air Service (1920), but no manuscripts of the book. Many of his published articles about aviation, 1916-1934, are also contained in this section. Papers relating to the Air Service, American Expeditionary Force, 1917-1918, include reports, manuals, charts, notes, and bulletins. Other aviation materials include periodicals, newsclippings, scrapbooks, reports, and printed matter, dated 1914-1943.

Correspondence is arranged chronologically. All other sections arranged by type of material, then chronologically.

Series VII: Hiram Bingham III, Politics, 1901-1935*7.5 linear feet (17 boxes)*

Series VII, Hiram Bingham III, Politics, consists of papers relating to Bingham's political activities, including his service as Lieutenant Governor and Governor of Connecticut and as United States Senator. There are relatively few papers from this period--and also very little correspondence (Series III) relating to his political career. The first section in this series, Speeches and essays, consists of manuscripts of Bingham's political writings, 1922-1935; a small speech reference file; and background articles. Published speeches and articles consists of writings, 1922-1934; Bingham's remarks in the Congressional Record, 1925-1929; and campaign literature about Bingham. Newsclippings about Hiram Bingham III consists of newspaper articles and notices from 1923 to 1935, with some general clippings dated 1917-1935. Scrapbooks consists of volumes documenting Bingham's political career and interests from 1919 to 1935. The fifth section, National Hughes Alliance, contains papers relating to Bingham's activities as head of the 1916 Republican presidential campaign in Connecticut, including a large file of Hughes Alliance membership cards giving the name, address, and occupation of members. Connecticut state politics consists of legislative manuals and bills, state government reports, market bulletins, and other papers on selected subjects and on several towns in the state. The final section, Printed matter, consists of campaign literature, dinner programs, government reports and publications, and printed matter relating to foreign affairs, particularly regarding the Dominican Republic, Mexico, and Nicaragua. There are also papers concerning the National Economic League, and Bingham's annotated copy of Josiah Royce's The Hope of the Great Community (1916).

Speeches and essays, Published speeches and articles, Newsclippings, and Scrapbooks are each arranged chronologically. National Hughes Alliance is arranged by type of material. Connecticut state politics and Printed matter are arranged alphabetically by subject.

Series VIII: Hiram Bingham III, Elihu Yale biography, 1671-1939, bulk 1937-1939

3 linear feet (7 boxes)

Series VIII, Hiram Bingham III, Elihu Yale biography, consists of materials relating to Bingham's research and writing about the early benefactor of Yale College. The first section, Writings of Hiram Bingham III, consists of printed editions of his two articles about Elihu Yale, drafts of one of these articles, and drafts, photographs, and illustrations for his book, Elihu Yale, the American Nabob of Queen Square (1939). Research material includes photostatic copies of India Office documents, records from the British Museum and other repositories, and printed articles and other materials relating to Yale. The final section, Research notes, includes Bingham's notes on various subjects relating to Yale's life. Notes filed under the heading "Elihu Yale chronology" were arranged by year, but Bingham's headings do not always correspond with the dates of materials in the folders. This section also contains maps, research correspondence, a bibliography, and other reference material.

Writings by Hiram Bingham III is arranged chronologically. The other sections in the series are arranged by type of material and by subject.

Series IX: Hiram Bingham III, Personal papers, 1875-1975, bulk 1875-19573.5 linear feet (9 boxes)

Series IX, Hiram Bingham III, Personal papers, contains other papers of general biographical interest. Diaries consists of Bingham's diaries for the years 1905 to 1916 (one diary has notations extending to 1931); typewritten extracts from the diaries, 1910-1915, made by Woodbridge Bingham; and a notebook dated 1915-1916. Writings consists of Bingham's manuscripts, book reviews, articles, and speeches on subjects not related to Latin America, politics, aviation, or Elihu Yale. Scrapbooks consists of personal scrapbooks, dated 1880 and 1915-1917, a guest book, and newsclippings, 1897-1928. Biographical material contains materials of general biographical interest, including autobiographical statements, daily schedule records, diplomas and certificates, medical records, and obituaries. Family history consists of notes and partial drafts for Bingham's proposed biography of his grandfather, Hiram Bingham I; newsclippings and printed matter concerning Hawaii and the Bingham family; and genealogical material concerning the Bingham, Brewster, and Grant families. Juvenilia consists of Bingham's notes and letters, 1875-1883, and a book which he used as a child. Education consists of material relating to his studies at Oahu College, Phillips Academy, Yale, the University of California at Berkeley, and Harvard. Most of these papers are lecture notes and student essays. Clubs and organizations contains papers relating to various groups with which Bingham was associated, including one folder of materials concerning schools to which he considered sending his sons. General book circulars, invitations, menus, Christmas cards, and printed matter follow the alphabetical sequence of groups. Legal and financial comprises wills, legal agreements and papers, a small amount of financial correspondence, tax and insurance papers, account ledgers, bills and receipts, stocks and securities, and printed matter. The final section, Photographs, includes portraits of Hiram Bingham II, Hiram Bingham III, and other family members; photographs concerning aviation; and other miscellaneous subjects.

Diaries, Writings, Scrapbooks, Juvenilia, and Education are arranged chronologically. Biographical material, Family history, and Legal and financial are arranged by type of material. Clubs and organizations and Photographs are arranged by subject.

Series X: Alfreda (Mitchell) Bingham, 1882-1976*2.5 linear feet (6 boxes)*

Series X, Alfreda M. Bingham, contains papers of Alfreda (Mitchell) Bingham and a small amount of material relating to her seven sons. There is a small amount of her personal correspondence here, although letters from Hiram Bingham and other family members are located with Family correspondence in Series III, and some letters addressed to Alfreda Bingham are in the General correspondence in Series III. A small amount of her correspondence and other personal papers dated before her first marriage is located in the Mitchell-Tiffany Family Papers (MS 701). This series also contains her writings (mostly poems and notes); her diaries from 1886 to 1946, including several early diaries written in German; appointment calendars, 1926-1933; books of souvenirs, autographs, notes, and addresses; her wedding invitation, 1900, and calling cards; concert programs; photographs; and newsclippings. Her financial records include account books, budget books, journal and payroll books, bills and receipts, a copy of her will, and notes concerning disposition of her property. Materials relating to her children include newsclippings, scrapbooks, school papers, and juvenilia. Of particular interest are several articles by Alfred M. Bingham, particularly "Sybil's Bones, a Chronicle of the Three Hiram Bingham" (1975).

The series is arranged by type of material.

Accession 1987-M-031: Additional Material, 1874-1984

Includes previous additions. The addition is comprised of five series: Correspondence, Family history, Personal, Writings, and Photographs. Most of the materials in the addition document some aspect of the life of Hiram Bingham III. There is valuable information concerning changing dynamics and shifting allegiances within his family over several decades. The marriage of Hiram and Alfreda Mitchell Bingham is well documented, from its beginning in 1900 to its demise in the 1930s. There is much documentation on Hiram Bingham III's various careers, especially his years in electoral politics and his chairmanship of President Truman's Loyalty Board, and his attendant political beliefs. There are interesting biographical narratives by Bingham family members which focus largely on Hiram Bingham III and his life accomplishments. Various writings convey Bingham's strongly held political beliefs and his general thinking on matters of government, especially as they involved some of the important debates of the first half of the twentieth century.

Series I: Correspondence

This series, the largest in the addition, is organized into two sections: Family and General. Letters in the Family section are comprised of those written from one member of the Bingham family to another. They are organized alphabetically by sender and, subsequently, alphabetically by recipient. Among the Family letters, there are four main senders: Alfred Bingham, Alfreda Mitchell Bingham; Hiram Bingham III; and Woodbridge Bingham. The three largest sets of letters are those from Hiram Bingham III to his mother, Mrs. Hiram Bingham II; letters from Alfreda Mitchell Bingham to her son, Woodbridge Bingham; and letters from Hiram Bingham III to Woodbridge Bingham. The letters from Hiram Bingham III to Mrs. Hiram Bingham II cover the years from 1892 to 1903, which include the time Bingham spent as a student at Phillips Academy, Yale University, and Harvard University, and his marriage to Alfreda Mitchell in 1900. These letters impart a sense of Bingham's movement away from his strict religious upbringing and into varied, and generally more secular, social environments. His relationship with Alfreda Mitchell prior to their marriages, and a 1902 trip to Europe, are also among the subjects of Bingham's letters to his mother. The letters from Alfreda Mitchell Bingham to Woodbridge Bingham, written between 1927 and 1938, are largely routine, but some of the letters disclose information about the decline and eventual end of Hiram and Alfreda Mitchell Bingham's marriage. The letters from Hiram Bingham III to his first son, Woodbridge Bingham, range from 1914 to 1955. These letters too contain information about the Bingham divorce and other personal matters, but they also provide insights into Hiram Bingham III's public life. During these years, he was a Yale professor, governor of Connecticut, United States senator, president of the National Aeronautics Association, and chairman of President Harry Truman's Loyalty Board. In informal ways, the letters to his son express Bingham's political beliefs over several decades and his views of world events. In 1930, for instance, he writes about the amendments he introduced to the Volstead Act which sought to reduce the harshness of Prohibition regulations, and in the 1950s he writes in defense of his leadership of the Loyalty Board.

The general section is arranged alphabetically and primarily contains letters between Hiram Bingham III and non-family members. Many of the letters involve Bingham's trip to China and the Far East in the late 1920s and detail the related foreign policy issues which concerned him. A 1910 document, written to members of the Carnegie Institution, is a proposal for the development of "scientific" studies of Central and South America.

Series II: Family history

This series is arranged alphabetically by family member. The materials found under each name are by or about that person. The documents contribute to an historical understanding of the Bingham family, especially Hiram Bingham III. Woodbridge Bingham's study of his father, "Hiram Bingham: A Personal History," stands out as an attempt to construct a comprehensive biography of Hiram Bingham III. An extensive interview with Woodbridge, conducted in 1972, is also included in which he discusses such topics as Hiram Bingham III's activities in Latin America and his father's relationship to his sons. Woodbridge's wife, Ursula Bingham, recounts her life in an oral history entitled "A Lady's Life: New England, Berkeley, China." "Sybil's Bones" is an interesting historical narrative which underscores the significance of the early Bingham. Some of the materials included in the series come from non-family sources. Often they are publications that have examined individual Bingham family members in historical perspective, such as "Bingham: A Loving Tribute," an account of Mrs. Hiram Bingham II's life.

Series IV: Writings

This series is arranged by type of writing and is primarily comprised of speeches, lectures and addresses written in the early 1930s. All of the writings are by Hiram Bingham III. Most of the documents were composed during Bingham's tenure as United States senator (1924-1932) and in the years immediately following, and they broadly reflect his views on government. His anti-big government stances are evinced in these writings, especially in his criticisms of federal government's taxation policies and "paternalistic" regulations. Many of the pieces offer historical contexts for the problems of Bingham's day, as in "Why I Believe in Modification" in which Bingham offers a history of beer and wine drinking which served to criticize Prohibition laws. In this way, the writings are suggestive not only of Bingham's views on government, but also his understanding of American history. A few of the pieces relate to Bingham's interest and work in the field of aeronautics.

Series V: Photographs

This series is arranged in two sections: Persons and Places. All of the photographs in the series are black and white images. Persons is organized alphabetically by individual and each folder contains photographs of the individual named, alone or with other persons. The largest number of photographs for one individual is the selection of Alfreda Mitchell Bingham, many of them from the early part of her marriage to Hiram Bingham III. Places is also organized alphabetically and includes interesting photographs of Hawaii, where Hiram Bingham III was born, as well as photographs of scenes and dorm life at Yale University in the late nineteenth century.
