Biographical / Historical

Ira V. Hiscock received a master's in public health from Yale in 1921 and served on the faculty of the Department of Public Health from 1920 on. He attained the rank of full professor in 1931 and became chairman of the department and Anna M. R. Lauder Professor in 1947, serving until his retirement in 1960. He was active in a large number of organizations and especially known for his work directing health surveys and in strengthening community public health organizations.

Scope and Contents

The collection contains public health surveys, mostly in mimeograph form, by Hiscock, as well as related surveys collected by Hiscock; speeches; some correspondence; materials related to Hiscock's work as a trustee of the Yale-in-China Association; materials related to his role as a member of the U.S. delegation to the World Health Assembly in 1958, and materials that were to be assembled in scrapbooks, especially from the period after his retirement. The supplement includes, among other items, correspondence of Philip E. Nelbach on public health in Westport; clippings on a community survey of the Greater Hartford area in 1948; mimeographs on polio in Connecticut ca. 1959; materials on Hiscock's awards; correspondence of Hiscock after his retirement with Edward R. DeLouise, Director of Public Health in New Haven; and photographs from the dedication of the Ira V. Hiscock Library (former EPH Library).

Arrangement

Organized into three series: 1. Health surveys and related materials. 2. Other Hiscock materials. 3. Supplement, 2016.

Collection Contents

Series I: Health surveys and related materials

Hiscock was asked to head or consult on many health surveys of cities, counties, and states across the United States. These reports contained data on mortality and morbidity, and examined the accomplishments and effectiveness of the various local organizations and institutions that served the health of the public. Some of the surveys in this series are by Hiscock. Others are related surveys that he collected. Many of the surveys were sponsored by such organizations as the Milbank Memorial Fund, the Commonwealth Fund, or the American Public Health Association. See also surveys in Box 8.

Supplement added 2016

The materials in the Supplement were transferred from the Ira V. Hiscock Library (EPH Library) of the Yale School of Public Health. Some were donated to the Ira V. Hiscock Library by Margaret H. Weatherly, Hiscock's daughter, in 1999. Others were donated by Edward DeLouise, Director of the New Haven Department of Public Health, upon his retirement in 1988. He donated "personal letters and materials that Dr. Hiscock sent me over the years." And some of the earlier materials appear to have come from the historical section of the EPH Library, and their provenance is unclear.
