CALL NUMBER: MS 2022

CREATOR: Pinello, Daniel R.

TITLE: Daniel Pinello interviews on same-sex marriage

DATES: 2004-2013

PHYSICAL DESCRIPTION: 7.75 linear feet (124 boxes)

LANGUAGE: English

SUMMARY: The Daniel Pinello interviews on same-sex marriage consist of oral histories (recordings and transcripts) that primarily focus on two series of events: First, the municipal issuance of marriage licenses in 2004 to lesbian and gay pairs in San Francisco, California, Sandoval County, New Mexico, and Multnomah County (Portland), Oregon, together with the statewide grant of such permits in Massachusetts. Second, the effects of Super-DOMAs (Defense of Marriage Acts) in Georgia, Michigan, North Carolina, Ohio, Texas, and Wisconsin. Super-DOMAs prohibited all forms of relationship recognition for same-sex couples and were ratified in 20 American states between 2000 and 2012. They were overturned when same-sex marriage was federally legalized in 2015.

Administrative Information

Immediate Source of Acquisition

Gift of Daniel R. Pinello, 2015 and 2023.

Conditions Governing Access

The materials are open to research unless otherwise noted.

Restricted fragile material. Access copies of digital files may be requested. Consult Public Services for further information.

Processing Information

Collections are processed to a variety of levels, depending on the work necessary to make them usable, their perceived research value, the availability of staff, competing priorities, and whether or not further accruals are expected. The library attempts to provide a basic level of preservation and access for all collections, and does more extensive processing of higher priority collections as time and resources permit.

Descriptions of interviews recommended by Daniel R. Pinello were provided by Pinello.

Existence and Location of Copies

The entire collection is available in digital form through the Beinecke Rare Book and Manuscript Library.

Biographical / Historical

Daniel R. Pinello graduated from Williams College with a B.A. in 1972, obtained a law degree from New York University in 1975 and a Ph.D. in political science from Yale University in 1991. He is a professor at John Jay College of Criminal Justice of the City University of New York and has written extensively on gay rights and the law.

The interviews in this collection stem from that focus, dealing especially with the impact on same-sex couples of Super-DOMA laws (Defense of Marriage Acts), or legislation that denied all rights of marriage to same-sex couples that existed in specific states previous to the federal right to same-sex marriage.

Scope and Contents

The Daniel Pinello interviews on same-sex marriage consist of oral histories (recordings and transcripts) that primarily focus on two series of events: First, the municipal issuance of marriage licenses in 2004 to lesbian and gay pairs in San Francisco, California, Sandoval County, New Mexico, and Multnomah County (Portland), Oregon, together with the statewide grant of such permits in Massachusetts. Second, the effects of Super-DOMAs (Defense of Marriage Acts) in Georgia, Michigan, North Carolina, Ohio, Texas, and Wisconsin. Super-DOMAs prohibited all forms of relationship recognition for same-sex couples and were ratified in 20 American states between 2000 and 2012. They were overturned when same-sex marriage was federally legalized in 2015. These interviews were conducted by Daniel Pinello, a professor at John Jay College of Criminal Justice of the City University of New York, between 2004 and 2013. Pinello carried out the videotaped conversations on location in the ten states as part of his research for two books: "America's Struggle for Same-Sex Marriage," published in 2006, and "America's War on Same-Sex Couples and their Families, And How the Courts Rescued Them," released in 2017.

Arrangement

The Daniel Pinello interviews on same-sex marriage collection is arranged chronologically.

Howell, Sharon (Detroit, Michigan) interview
1 Computer File

2009 January 13

Sharon Howell, after 25 years at Oakland University, a public institution north of Detroit, was a tenured full professor. Oakland provides affordable employee housing near campus. Howell and her substantially younger partner of 15 years made an offer to purchase a house there and secured a mortgage. Then Oakland informed Howell that, because of the state Super-DOMA, the partner would have no right to remain in the home if Howell pre-deceased her.

2009 January 17

Scott Dennis and James Etzkorn survey the political landscape leading to passage of Michigan's Proposal 2 of 2004, a Super-DOMA limiting all legally recognized relationship rights to opposite-sex couples. They also served as plaintiffs in a lawsuit by the American Civil Liberties Union against the referendum.

Maxwell, Rose and Kelly (Michigan) interview
1 Computer File

2009 January 17

Kelly Maxwell adopted a son, but Michigan doesn't permit second-parent adoptions for same-sex pairs. So her partner Rose changed her surname to Kelly's, and every six months, they have to sign a document for Rose's temporary guardianship of the son. All of this is in the hope that Rose wouldn't be questioned if she had to take him to a hospital.

Miller, Andrew and Craig Kukuk (Michigan) interview
1 Computer File

2009 January 19

Craig Kukuk and A.T. Miller (an undergraduate-program director at the University of Michigan) share that an external executive-search agency hired by the University solicited nine people in senior positions elsewhere in the country who responded up front, "I won't work in a state that treats gay couples the way Michigan does." Kukuk and Miller themselves later relocated to Cornell University in upstate New York.

Holness, Vielka and Judy Keenan (New York, New York) interview
1 Computer File

2009 September
26

Vielka Holness and Judy Keenan met in Michigan, where the latter was raised and lived for 35 years. Holness practiced law in the Wolverine State and has close ties there. Then the couple relocated to New York, Holness's home state. The University of Michigan offered her a tenure-track professorship at the same time the Super-DOMA there was adopted. As a consequence, Holness had to refuse the highly coveted position in higher education.

Gutierrez, Leonel G., and David W. Lawson interview

Lupe Guitiérrez and David Lawson describe several ways in which they gamed the Texas Super-DOMA. The first ploy was to have just the name of one of them on the deed to their Dallas house, while only the name of the other was on their country home, thereby securing homestead property-tax exemptions on both (which would not have been allowed if their relationship were legally recognized).

Klebba, Robert and David Waugh (Mount Horeb, Wisconsin) interview
1 Computer File

2011 July 9

Robert Klebba and David Waugh played the system under the Super-DOMA. One qualified as a destitute farmer and therefore received Wisconsin's excellent Badger Care health insurance, designed for low-income working people. But had their personal relationship been legally recognized, no such coverage would have occurred.

Pepple, John Stacey (Madison, Wisconsin) interview 2011 July 10
1 Computer File

John Pepple, with a master's degree in education, followed his partner of 12 years around the country for four career moves and eventually landed in Madison. When the husband terminated their relationship, Pepple ended up with no legal rights to their home and personal property. Rather, he was entirely dependent on his former partner's largesse.
