Processing Information

The April 2013 Acquisition was processed by Dianne Ritchey of the Leo Baeck Institute of the Center for Jewish History prior to it being transferred to the Beinecke Library. The folders retain the original markings and reference previous box numbers. All of the papers in the April 2013 Acquisition were previously digitized during processing at the Leo Baeck Institute, and links to those images as hosted by the Center for Jewish History are retained.

ALFRED SCHÜTZ (1899-1959)

Alfred Schütz was born in Vienna on April 13, 1899. His early education at the Esterhazy Gymnasium was concluded with a comprehensive emergency examination in order for him to enter the Austrian army. Upon his return to Vienna in late 1918, he was faced with the choice of creating a civilian career in the devastated post World-War Austrian economy. He chose to study law as well as international trade, preparing himself for employment in the field of banking. He began working with various public and private banking concerns in the late 1920s. In 1926, he married Ilse Heim.

While he was pursuing a career in the field of finance, Schütz never ceased his studies. He focused on the sociological school of thinking that was based in Vienna, studying with and becoming close colleagues with Ludwig von Mises. By the late 1920s, Schütz had written a manuscript born out of his study of Bergson and Weber, "Lebensformen and Sinnstruktur." After encountering the published works of Edmund Husserl, Schütz wrote and published Der sinnhafte Aufbau der sozialen Welt in 1932. This was followed by a meeting with Husserl, himself, firmly positing Schütz as a proponent of the developing thesis of phenomenology.

From 1933 to 1938, Alfred Schütz continued to expand his worldview through his writing. However, developments in Nazi Germany kept intellectuals in Austria keenly aware of their threatened status. Several of Schütz's closest friends had emigrated beginning in the early 1930s. Schütz was able to make his way out of Vienna to Paris in 1938, where he was soon joined by the rest of his family. From there, it was on to New York, where he continued in the employ of the banking firm Reitler and Associates.

In 1943, Schütz began to teach sociology at the New School for Social Research, while continuing his career in banking. His academic activities increased over the years until, in 1956, he became a full-time professor at the school. He continued to teach and write even when ill health began to curtail his activities in the late 1950s. He died at the age of 60 on May 20, 1959.

A detailed account of Schütz's life, focusing on his work and writings, can be found in Helmut R. Wagner's Alfred Schütz: An Intellectual Biography (Chicago: Univ. of Chicago Press, 1983).

Scope and Contents

The Alfred Schütz Papers consist of manuscripts, course and lecture materials, letters, documentation pertaining to various organizations with which he was affiliated, and personal papers documenting his life and work. The papers span the years 1868-2005, with the bulk concentrated in the two decades before Schütz's death, 1940-59.

Series I, Manuscripts, contains drafts of most of Schütz's essays. Most of the manuscript pages are individually stamped with consecutive numbers. This was apparently done by Lester Embree in 1971 when he prepared his An Outline of the Alfred Schütz Nachlass. His arrangement was based on the order in which he found the manuscripts in Schütz's bookcases. This arrangement has been preserved, as drafts of works were, for the most part, kept together, though the chronological order of the drafts may not be precise. Physical descriptions of the materials have been translated from German into English (e.g. fassung = draft), but titles have not been translated. An additional group of manuscripts donated in 1990 contained drafts of works already accounted for in the Embree listing. These new materials were integrated into the arrangement according to their titles, though they are unnumbered. Therefore, some works may have folders of numbered pages interfiled with folders of unnumbered pages.

Included in this series are drafts of Die Strukturen der Lebenswelt, Phänomenologie und Kulturwissenschaft, On Multiple Realities and Mozart and the Philosophers. Also found here are several essays on other influential writers, such as Edmund Husserl, Max Weber, T. S. Eliot and George Santayana.

In some instances, letters or printed materials were included in, and numbered along with, the drafts of manuscripts. These have been retained in their original places with the manuscripts, but cross-references have been made, where appropriate, from Series II, Subject Files and Correspondence Series II, Teaching and Research Materials, consists of lecture and course materials prepared for classes which Schütz taught at the New School for Social Research, and reading notes by Schütz on various topics, most of which were related to the social sciences. As with Series I, this group of materials consists of folders of numbered sheets interfiled with folders of unnumbered sheets.

Series III, Subject Files and Correspondence, contains letters, writings by others, and materials from organizations. These materials made up part of the 1990 donation and were received in an order apparently kept by Alfred Schütz. This group has been kept together in the original received order. Headings for persons and corporate groups are followed by subheadings indicating the type of materials present. (e.g. material relating to Dorion Cairns is divided into Correspondence and a draft of a manuscript).

Among the more complete collections of correspondence are those with H. L. van Breda, Marvin Farber, Eric Voegelin, Fritz Machlup, Maurice Natanson, Kurt Wolff, and with Aron Gurwitsch (this last group having been published as Philosophers in Exile, Richard Grathoff ed., Bloomington: Indiana University Press, 1989). Other correspondents represented in this series include Raymond Aron, Kenneth Burke, Kurt Goldstein, Jean Hyppolite, Karl Löwith, Jacques Maritain, Maurice Merleau-Ponty, Karl Popper, Jacques Rueff, Meyer Schapiro, Leo Strauss, and Jean Wahl. Schütz often kept carbon copies of his letters to his many colleagues, so often, both sides of an epistolary exchange are extant in this archive.

Drafts of manuscripts from fellow social scientists such as Marvin Farber, Aron Gurwitsch, Eric Voegelin and Ludwig von Mises are found in this series. Schütz preserved an amount of correspondence and meeting literature for such events of the Colloque philosophique de Royaumont and the Conference on Science, Philosophy and Religion. Included among these are drafts of reports and comments by Schütz. Materials relating to Schütz's tenure at the New School for Social Research include correspondence and graduate faculty memos written by Schütz and others.

Among the Personal Papers in Series IV are résumé fragments and lists of Schütz's publications.

Series V, Additions Since 2003, includes reproductions of annotations Schütz made to books in his library, now held at the Sozialwissenschaftliches Archiv Konstanz. There are 44 reels of microfilm duplicating 162 titles and one CD. The reels include the full text of titles, with Schütz's annotations, and the CD contains JPEG images of pages with annotations in color and Word files documenting color annotations. The reels are arranged in alphabetical order by author and accompanied by a finding aid.

Series VIII, April 2013 Acquisition, consists of family correspondence, immigration documents, writings, genealogical materials, and other family papers.

Series VIII: April 2013 acquisition, 1868-2005, bulk 1935–1959

6.46 linear feet (8 boxes)

Primarily in German, English and French with a small amount of Hebrew, Spanish, Hungarian and Aramaic.

This addition to the contains contains the papers of the family of Alfred Schutz, a social scientist and professor at the New School who focused on phenomenology. Most of the collection consists of the family correspondence. In addition, the collection includes official family papers such as vital, identification or travel records and personal writing such as celebratory poems or diaries.

Series I contains the family correspondence, mostly letters of Alfred, Ilse, Johanna and Otto Schutz. The bulk of it derives from the years in which the family was separated and documents their decision to immigrate to the United States and their difficulties in doing so. Immigration correspondence primarily consists of letters sent to Alfred and Ilse from family members and others. Some folders of immigration letters also include some copies of official documents used in visa applications. The correspondence centers on the immigration activities as well as on family news, since Alfred Schutz was often away from his family on business trips. Letters were written by Alfred and Ilse Schutz especially often, so that they form a picture of the daily events of their later lives. Series IV contains the correspondence of Evelyn Schutz Lang with her parents as a young woman, with letters that describe her years at the University of Rochester, summer breaks, and her post-graduation trip to Europe. Notable is Subseries 2 of Series IV, which holds her translations of the immigration correspondence of Series I. These translations includes commentaries by Evelyn Schutz Lang that assist in their interpretation as well as endnotes that denote items of particular interest in the collection.

Official papers of family members will primarily be found in Series II, organized by family member. Many of these attest to the family's travels prior to reaching the United States, and it seems likely they were collected for immigration purposes. The papers consist of items such as birth, death and marriage certificates, identification papers from Austria or France, travel papers, citizenship and residency certificates or education papers. Ilse Schutz's papers include several folders of material relating to her death and funeral, as well as a few entries in a diary and some notebooks. Johanna and Otto Schutz's papers include some restitution material for the loss of their property.

Some personal writings of Alfred Schutz are located in Series III. These include many poems for his parents and some brief plays, including some from his childhood. In addition, this series includes copies of a journal of his 1937 trip to the United States and of daily calendars and an address book he used in the United States.

A small amount of genealogical correspondence and family trees is present in Series IV.

Gift of Evelyn S. Lang, 2013.

Previously on deposit at the Leo Baeck Institute of the Center for Jewish History, New York, NY.

The April 2013 Acquisition was processed by Dianne Ritchey of the Leo Baeck Institute of the Center for Jewish History prior to it being transferred to the Beinecke Library. The folders retain the original markings and reference previous box numbers. All of the papers in the April 2013 Acquisition were previously digitized during processing at the Leo Baek Institute, and links to those images as hosted by the Center for Jewish History are retained.

Organized into four series: I. Alfred and Ilse Schutz Correspondence, 1893-1980. II. Family Documents, 1868-1990. III. Writings and Notes by Alfred Schutz, 1909-1959. IV. Evelyn Schutz Lang Correspondence, 1951-2005.

Series I: Alfred and Ilse Schutz Correspondence 1893-1980
 3.2 linear feet.
 German

Series I contains the Schutz family's correspondence, divided by the type of arrangement. The bulk of it by far is in Subseries 1, which holds the personal correspondence of the family members. Subseries 2, with its small amount of topical files, primarily consist of letters sent to and from individuals who were not part of Alfred Schutz's immediate family.

This series is arranged in two subseries:

Subseries 1: Chronological Files
Subseries 2: Topical Files

Subseries 1: Chronological Files 1893-1980
 3 linear feet.
 German

Subseries 1 consists of personal letters and accompanying documents of the Schutz family. Most prominent are the correspondence of Alfred and Ilse Schutz, along with some correspondence of Johanna and Otto Schutz. Other family members, including their children in later letters, are included to a lesser extent. Users of the collection should note that nearly all of the family members used nicknames or alternate names: Alfred was "Fredl" or "Fredy," Johanna was "Hansi," Otto was "Peter," and Gisella Heim was "Gisa"; Ilse often signed her letters with the sketch of a flower instead of her name.

Although some early letters show the life of Alfred Schutz and his and Ilse's growing friendship prior to their marriage, for the most part they document his life with Ilse and the events that led to the family's immigration as well as their lives in the United States. Alfred Schutz was frequently away from his family for business trips, so the letters often focus on daily events and family concerns and are frequently quite personal, showing the close relationship of the couple in spite of their distance from each other. The letters were written very frequently, at times every day or even multiple letters in one day.

Included with the correspondence of this subseries is a 1937 journal by Alfred Schutz that describes his first trip to the United States. It details the places he visited and experiences he had, people he visited and events in which he took part. Most of the journal was written while he lived in Manhattan, and includes portrayals of the apartment building where he lived and the office in which he worked in addition to locations such as Grand Central Terminal and Macy's. Alfred Schutz also mentioned his first trip on the subway and first time shopping in a self-service grocery. More distant excursions in the journal include Niagara Falls, Philadelphia, Mount Vernon, Virginia; it concludes with several days in Chicago.

Most of the correspondence of this series dates from the years of the family members' immigration, so this topic is prevalent, along with the acquisition of necessary paperwork and the sale of Johanna and Otto Schutz's residence. In this subseries are two different versions of the letter sent by Alfred Schutz to Ilse Schutz on May 8, 1938, termed the "Fork in the Road" letter by Evelyn Schutz Lang. It is in this letter that Alfred Schutz outlines the reasons why he feels the family ought to leave Vienna and join him in Paris. Letters written between them while they were separated are almost entirely from Ilse, not those written by Alfred. Although the bulk of letters from the 1930s and early 1940s are from family members, there are also many letters from friends, who offer assistance to Alfred or give reports after seeing his family during trips to Vienna. In May 1939 Ilse Schutz sailed alone to the United States in order to acquire the family's missing fourth quota number; she wrote several letters from the Queen Mary at this time to her husband which advise him on his outlook on their difficult immigration situation. There are also many telegrams from and to her at this time.

Later letters relate to the Schutzes' lives in the United States, with many having been written during the summers when Ilse Schutz and her children spent their vacations upstate while Alfred Schutz taught at the New School or was away on business trips in Europe. Several later letters refer to the health of George Schutz, who had a visual impairment. Most of these later letters convey family news.

Users may notice some notes in the container list for this subseries. These notes refer to the endnotes referenced by Evelyn Schutz Lang in her translations and summaries of this correspondence in Series IV, Subseries 2.

	Subseries 3: Otto and Johanna Schutz 0.25 linear feet. German Subseries 3 contains the papers of Otto and Johanna (née Fialla) Schutz, the parents of Alfred Schutz. Most of the papers of this subseries consist of various official documents of the couple used for immigration purposes, including certificates, travel and identification papers. The immigration folder of "Finances and Property" and the folder "Vienna Registration" include lists of property; the first contains a list of Johanna Schutz's jewelry and valuables with their estimated worth, while "Vienna Registration" has lists of items such as suitcase contents and artwork from their Vienna residence. Two folders hold restitution papers and correspondence related to the retrieval or compensation of Johanna and Otto Schutz's property. With the first folder of restitution are 1931 letters to Otto Schutz, sent upon his retirement from Ephrussi & Co., where he worked for almost forty years. Subseries 4: General Family and Other Family Members

0.1 linear feet.

German

Subseries 4 consists of papers of other family members and one folder which pertains to the family in general, with information on the graves of family members in Vienna and the United States.

Two folders hold papers of Heim family members, including Eric Heim, Ilse Schutz's brother, and her parents, Leopold and Gisela. The folder on Eric Heim includes copies of official certificates which document his immigration to the United Kingdom as well as his death there. Papers of Leopold and Gisella Heim include Leopold Heim's death and employment, the couple's marriage certificate and various papers of Gisella Heim. Her papers document her immigration to England, and later to the United States, her later death there and a few papers that pertain to her loss of property.

A few official papers of Moritz Schutz, the paternal grandfather of Alfred Schutz, are also present. These consist of official documents such as birth, circumcision and marriage certificates as well as a responsibility statement issued by the community upon his move to Vienna and a letter to the police department there in 1881.

Series III: Writings and Notes by Alfred Schutz

1909-1959

0.3 linear feet.

German

Series III comprises compositions and notes created by Alfred Schutz. Most of the series consists of his creative endeavors, including many plays and poems. In addition, this series holds a copy of his journal from his first trip to the United States and photocopies of his daily calendars and address books used in the United States.

The first folder holds his writings given to family members in his early years; most of the recipients of these poems and plays were his parents, Otto and Johanna Schutz. Included is also a description of life from the point of view of his infant niece Vera, titled "Veras Tagebuch."

Alfred Schutz's poetry ruminates on several topics. Most frequent are poems that reflect upon the nature of life, death and religious subjects. Others deal with nature or art, among other subjects.

The daily calendars note significant dates, meetings, and New School activities in addition to addresses.

Series IV: Evelyn Schutz Lang

1951-2005

1.6 linear feet.

English

Series IV consists of the papers of Alfred Schutz's daughter. The first subseries contains some personal correspondence between herself, her parents and her grandmother. This correspondence centers on her years at the University of Rochester, but also includes her time away from home during the summer and a year-long post-graduation trip to Europe. The second subseries includes her English translations and summaries of the immigration correspondence of Series I. These include historical notes and commentary on the letters by Evelyn Schutz, providing further detail on historical occurrences as well as family events. The final subseries consists of two family trees.

This series is divided into three subseries:

Subseries 1: Personal Correspondence

1951-1956

0.9 linear feet.

1997-1998

English

This subseries holds the correspondence of Evelyn Schutz Lang with her parents, paternal grandmother and brother. Most of it consists of letters sent to and from her while she attended the University of Rochester in the early 1950s. Others record her experiences during summer breaks and in a year-long trip to Europe after graduation. One folder contains later correspondence that relates to genealogical research.

Correspondence from Evelyn Schutz's years at the University of Rochester tell of her decision to attend the institution and the events that occurred during her attendance along with her parents' response, advice, and news from home. Alfred and Ilse Schutz are the most frequent correspondents and often commented on her studies as well as on other subjects. Letters were sent frequently, often multiple times a week, and provide a depiction of life at an American university during this time period. Letters sent during summer break are of a similar nature.

Her year living abroad in Europe describes her life at this time, and impressions of her visits to England, France, Italy, Switzerland and Austria, with lengthier stays in London and Kitzbühel. Especially of interest may be her impressions of Vienna and discussions between herself and family members about this city.

Subseries 2: Translations and Summaries of Family Correspondence 0.7 linear feet. English Subseries 2 comprises translations and summaries of the family correspondence and other papers used during their immigration to the United States, located in Series I of this collection. These translations, arranged in chronological order, were created by Evelyn Schutz Lang and include historical notes interspersed throughout the text that place the letters in context. Some letters contain her comments on the situations mentioned, including notations of possible coded statements made by family members in order to evade the censors. The final folder of this subseries includes a summary of historical events as well as endnotes to the translations. These endnotes reference specific folders and documents; this finding aid's container list for the contents of Series I contains notations for these endnotes, including references to the Schutz's "Fork in the Road" letter of May 8, 1938. The endnotes include references to personal material of Alfred Schutz that may be available in the Yale University Archives and lists of personal family documents in this collection. This folder also includes a loose clipping on Alfred Schutz found at the end of the collection. Chronological by date of original letters.		1986-2005
