Administrative Information

Immediate Source of Acquisition

I. 1968-1993 Acquisitions: This group is made up of a number of separate acquisitions received by the library from 1968 to 1993. The largest of these are the 1968 purchase of David G. Jeffreys's collection, purchased on the Beinecke Fund (Kitty Miller), and the 1972 and 1975 gifts of Kenneth Macpherson. A detailed list of sources for material in this collection is located in Box 1.

II. 1993-2003 Acquisitions: Acquired by gift and purchase from various sources. Source information is recorded on the folders. For further information, consult the appropriate curator.

III. January 2008 Acquisition: Purchased from Elysium Press on The Edwin J. Beinecke Fund, 2008.

IV. August 2008 Acquisition: Purchased from Elysium Press on The Edwin J. Beinecke Fund, 2008.

V. August 2019 Acquisition: Purchased from Blackwell Rare Books on the James Marshall and Marie-Louise Osborn Collection Fund, 2019.

Conditions Governing Access

The materials are open for research.

Conditions Governing Use

The Norman Douglas Collection is the physical property of the Beinecke Rare Book and Manuscript Library, Yale University. Literary rights, including copyright, belong to the authors or their legal heirs and assigns. For further information, consult the appropriate curator.

Preferred Citation

Norman Douglas Collection. General Collection, Beinecke Rare Book and Manuscript Library.

Processing Information

Collections are processed to a variety of levels, depending on the work necessary to make them usable, their perceived research value, the availability of staff, competing priorities, and whether or not further accruals are expected. The library attempts to provide a basic level of preservation and access for all collections, and does more extensive processing of higher priority collections as time and resources permit.

Each grouping of this collection has been processed separately. Various acquisitions associated with the collection have not been merged and organized as a whole.

This finding aid may be updated periodically to account for new acquisitions to the collection and/or revisions in arrangement and description.

Norman Douglas (1868-1952)

Norman Douglas, an expatriate British author, was born in Thüringen, Austria. Educated in Scotland and Europe, he entered the British diplomatic service in 1893 and left three years later. Douglas married Elsa FitzGibbon in 1898. The couple had two sons before divorcing in 1904. Douglas was assistant editor for The English Review from 1912-1916, during which he authored the travel books Siren Land (1911), Fountains in the Sand (1912), and Old Calabria (1915). In 1916 he left London for Capri, where he wrote the novel South Wind (1917). During the 1920s and 1930s Douglas continued to publish fiction, essays, travel books, and autobiographical works, many in limited editions published by his companion Pino Orioli. After the outbreak of World War II, Douglas fled to London from Lisbon, and returned to Capri in 1946. His later works were Late Harvest (1946), and the posthumously-published Venus in the Kitchen (1952), which he edited under the pseudonym Pilaff Bey.

Scope and Contents

The Norman Douglas Collection chiefly documents Douglas's writing career, personal life, and relationships with other writers and artists. Although the collection spans the years 1864-2000, the bulk of the papers fall in the period 1920-1980. The collection contains material created and accumulated by Norman Douglas, Kenneth Macpherson, Islay de Courcy Lyons, and Maurice Magnus. Material includes correspondence, writings, diaries, photographs, photograph albums, financial and business papers, personal effects, printed material, artwork, and a bronze sculpture.

Arrangement

Organized into five groupings: I. 1968-1993 Acquisitions, II. 1993-2003 Acquisitions, III. January 2008 Acquisition, IV. August 2008 Acquisition, and V. August 2019 Acquisition.

Material within this collection has been organized in groups reflecting the fact that the collection has been acquired in increments over time.

Researchers should note that material within each group overlaps with and/or relates to material found in other groups. In order to locate all relevant material within this collection, researchers will need to consult each group described in the Collection Contents section.

Researchers should also note that similar material can be arranged differently in each group, depending on how the material was organized when it was received by the library.

Collection Contents

Series I: 1968-1993 Acquisitions, 1864-1967

16.31 linear feet (42 boxes)

The 1968-1993 Acquisitions chiefly document Norman Douglas's writing career. Although the collection spans the years 1864-1967, the bulk of the papers date between 1920 and 1950.

Series I. Writings, documents the creation and publication of many of Douglas's works. Series II. Correspondence, includes letters to and from Douglas and a substantial quantity of third party correspondence. Literary manuscripts and other papers Douglas acquired can be found in Series III. Subject Files. Series IV. Personal Papers, contains records related to Douglas's private life and family papers. Material Related to Norman Douglas, Series V., is comprised of a variety of material, from published articles to radio broadcast scripts, about Douglas and his work.

Organized into five series: I. Writings. II. Correspondence. III. Subject Files. IV. Personal Papers. V. Material Related to Norman Douglas.

Series I: Writings

1880-1956

Series I. chiefly consists of: research material and notes, manuscript drafts, typescripts, galley, printer's proofs, printed versions, clippings, and correspondence.

Research material comprises documents Douglas collected as background sources, while notes are papers he produced. Douglas made extensive use of newspaper clippings when writing Old Calabria and Siren Land, while London Street Games was based on scores of children's letters. Douglas's own notes can be found for Birds and Beasts and Some Limericks. An interesting document is Douglas's memo on the arrangement of Late Harvest, which was not printed during Douglas's lifetime.

The series includes manuscript drafts for most of Douglas's later works. The majority of typescripts, galley, and printer's proofs are extensively corrected, although the presence of multiple copies with similar markings makes it difficult to discern the order of the drafts. In such contingencies the term "variant copies" has been used to alert the user. Typescripts, galley, and printer's proofs were often inscribed by Douglas and given to friends, especially Kenneth Macpherson and David Jeffreys.

Almost every book represented in the series has a clippings file containing reviews and advertisements. The documentation for several works includes business correspondence and fan mail. Fan mail predominates, as in the case of Old Calabria and London Street Games, where readers sent Douglas further information on his topic.

Other material in this series concerns dramatizations of Douglas's prose. There are notices of stage and radio performances, and a playscript for They Went.

Organized into three subseries: Books and Pamphlets, Contributions to Books and Pamphlets, and Contributions to Periodicals. This arrangement is informed by Cecil Woolf's A Bibliography of Norman Douglas (London: Rupert Hart-Davis, 1954). Within each edition, the material is placed in order of creation, from the author's notes to printed versions. Miscellaneous works are at the end of each section. Documents that cannot be assigned to a specific edition are placed under "Unidentified editions." The arrangement of background material, drafts, and reviews follows the order of production.

Series II: Correspondence

1874-1960

Series II includes incoming, outgoing, and third party correspondence that document the professional and private life of Norman Douglas. Most of Douglas's correspondents were members of the literary world, and they discussed contemporary authors and their works. The English Review file concerns Douglas's editorial work, while the Grant Richards Ltd. Publishers file documents Douglas's role as Maurice Magnus's literary executor. Information on the publication of Douglas's own work is abundant. Correspondence with The Bookseller documents the copyright problems relating to South Wind, and the letters of Edward Garnett, Willie (William) King, Oscar Levy, and John Mavrogordato are filled with editorial advice.

With a few friends, Douglas's letters were more intimate. In his correspondence with Bryher, Martha Gordon-Crotch, David Jeffreys, and Kenneth Macpherson, he writes of the young men in his life. Series II also contains correspondence with these male companions (see Emilio Papa, Rene Mari, and Eric Wolton). Douglas wrote frequently to his son Archibald and the collection contains his letters from 1925 to Douglas's death in 1952. The letters discuss literature as well as Douglas's own writing and document the lives of Douglas and Archibald.

Third party correspondence consists of letters to and from Robin Douglas, F. W. Hutchinson, D. H. Lawrence, Kenneth Macpherson, and Maurice Magnus. The letters of Robin Douglas and Kenneth Macpherson comment on the press's treatment of Douglas. Hutchinson's correspondence sheds light on Douglas's difficulties during World War II, especially Hutchinson's letters to Nancy Cunard.

The series also contains a large number of early twentieth century Italian postcards. Douglas sent cards depicting Italian sculpture and architecture to F. W. and Kay Hutchinson, Kenneth Macpherson, and John Mavrogordato.

Series II is organized into three subseries: Norman Douglas Incoming Correspondence, Norman Douglas Outgoing Correspondence, and Third Party Correspondence. The first two subseries contain letters to and from Norman Douglas, arranged alphabetically by name and then chronologically. Correspondents with fewer than five letters have been placed in "Letter" general files. Third Party Correspondence consists of letters to and from Robin Douglas, F. W. Hutchinson, D. H. Lawrence, Kenneth Macpherson, and Maurice Magnus. Where there is more than one party corresponding with an individual, the letters are listed under individual names.

Series IV: Personal Papers Series IV focuses on Douglas's private life, though there is also material that probably relates to The English Review. Material on Douglas's funeral includes Douglas's instructions on the distribution of his property. A series of pocket diaries, which cover most of his life, act as a record of Douglas's correspondence. He noted daily to whom he was writing and often where he was traveling. The collection also contains six ornithological diaries dating from 1885 to 1898. They record Douglas's bird watching in Germany and Austria. The series also includes photograph albums and sets of photographs, most taken and annotated by Douglas and Pino Orioli on trips in Calabria and other Italian locations. Subjects of photographs include the 1952 funeral and gravesite of Norman Douglas. In the Douglas Family section, Elsa FitzGibbon's diary of 1901-1902 provides a rare view of Douglas's married life. Series IV is organized into two subseries: Norman Douglas (further arranged alphabetically by subject), and Douglas Family (further arranged by family name). Norman Douglas		1864-1964

Series V: Material Related to Norman Douglas

1926-1961

Series V contains a variety of sources about Norman Douglas, his life, and his work. The articles and other material were probably collected by Douglas and Kenneth Macpherson. The documents cover the following topics: Capri, Collecting Norman Douglas, Norman Douglas (biographical and literary analysis), and Norman Douglas and his Circle (when Douglas himself is not the focus of the article). To facilitate use, longer articles have been listed separately under Individual Works, while the rest have been grouped under Subjects. The second section also includes reviews of several Douglas biographies. Reviews were often followed by "Letters to the editor."

Also included is Provenance Material relating to Kenneth Macpherson's research on the value of the Douglas papers, including bibliographies, extracts from bookdealers' catalogs, and clippings.

Series V is organized into two subseries: Individual Works and Subjects. The first subseries is arranged alphabetically by author, and the second alphabetically by subject title.
